"That is what learning is
You suddenly understand

-Doris Lessing

Trials always seem to come in threes and so it was for Europe during the Dark Ages. An acrimonious papal schism, the deadly bubonic plague, and the especially violent Hundred Years' War combined to put the European continent into a tailspin from which many feared it would never recover. However, recover it did, and the Renaissance period that followed proved to be one of the most influential in the history of Western civilization.

Scholars infused the Renaissance with a renewed sense of optimism concerning the power of God, the potential of man, and their duty to the world they had combined to create. They encouraged the study of the liberal arts which they described as "those studies by which we attain and practice virtue and wisdom; that education which calls forth, trains and develops those highest gifts of body and of mind, which ennoble man."

Renaissance intellectuals were not content with mastering rhetoric, logic, math, and music. They also insisted on asking, "why am I here?" Their understanding of time was not simply as pressure, but rather as progress, and to that end they recognized it to be their civic duty to change their world. The extent to which they succeeded is seen in the great achievements in humanist thought, reformation theology, and scientific discovery in the decades and centuries that followed.

Eastern Nazarene College recently emerged from a dark age of its own as a near catastrophic financial crisis, the abandonment of campus by faculty, and an ethical scandal by a sports team together served to discourage and divide the college community. While some predicted the demise of the institution, others refused to give up.

ENC now finds itself in the middle of its own renaissance where recovery is rampant and great optimism is the sentiment du jour. Trustees certified the financial health of the college by declaring an official end to the fiscal emergency. Admissions increased the size of the student body by admitting one of the largest freshman classes in recent memory. And a revival of intellectualism has seen a return to the golden age of world class speakers, stellar faculty scholarship, and the undertaking of curriculum reform for the first time in 35 years.

Besides a sense of renewed vitality, ENC is displaying other Renaissance traits. ENC, too, finds its identity in its emphasis upon the liberal arts. However, simply mastering the science of reason or the art of debate is not enough. To virtue one must add wisdom, for man's highest potential is unattainable without the power of God. The school motto of "via, vita, veritas" epitomizes ENC's insistence upon this integration of faith, life, and learning whether in the classroom, on the sports field, in the dorms, or on a choir tour. Lastly, ENC insists that each student ask of themselves, "why am I here?" From entering the front gate as inexperienced freshmen one's time is spent preparing to leave by it as matured seniors. However, in between, each of us is called forth and equipped to impact the world we will combine to create. Whether "energizing the Church, serving the community, or fostering stewardship of God's creation" one must do it all to the glory of God. For then, who knows what great achievements will be seen in the decades to follow?

Dr. J. David McClung

Dedication

Churchman ... husband ... father ... grandfather ... preacher's kid ... lawyer ... businessman ... helicopter pilot ... decorated military veteran ... photographer ... world traveler ... computer whiz ... and the list goes on. These were the titles by which J. David McClung had been most frequently known until March 14, 2002. On that date, he was elected to a four-year term by the Board of Trustees of Eastern Nazarene College and, thus, added "College President" to his list. Leaving his home in Gig Harbor, Washington and arriving at Eastern Nazarene College by April 2, 2002, he quickly endeared himself to the campus community, especially the students.

He quickly posted hundreds (and later thousands) of digital pictures of ENC students, faculty, and staff to his websites, visited the residence halls with his wife, Linda, and began eating regularly in the cafeteria. His chapel talks routinely combined practical advice with encouragement for Christian living. An avid supporter of student groups and quickly learning students' names, he became a visible presence at campus events. In addition, he crisscrossed the educational zone that makes up the Eastern Region of the Church of the Nazarene -- representing ENC annually at eight district assemblies, various pastors and spouses' retreats, and national gatherings.

By student selection, one more honor is now his due, as this 2004 Eastern Nazarene College Nautilus yearbook is dedicated to honor our twelfth president, Dr. J. David McClung.

-Anita Henck

A man who has devoted his time, energy and life to making the experience of every ENC student one they will remember for years to come. Dr. McClung came to this school three years ago amidst a school surrounded in questions; questions about the financial state of the school, the leadership and the direction. Two years later, our beloved ENC was well on its way increasing numbers and other good stuff. One of the most important aspects of Dr. McClung's work here at ENC can be understood through his relationship with the student body. Dr. McClung genuinely cares about the students he so faithfully serves. This can readily be seen through his regular attendance school events, despite his ridiculously busy schedule. His devotio to forming community within our school can also be demonstrate through the camera that seems to be glued to his hand at time His photo album is quickly becoming the most visited website b students who find a digital history of their years at school throug the president's pictures.

1: The McClungs enjoy yet another winter in Quincy. 2: The W and Coach Zink take time from a busy Move-In Day Orientati a photo-op with President McClung. 3: When the weather's it's hard to miss President McClung around campus ready to a random picture at a moments notice. 4: You have heard McClung family grandchildren, now here you can see them. 5: H much would YOU pay for a chance to have been the one to

Through my contact with Dr. McClung, I have realized th he is a man of advocacy for the student body. Dr. McClung make sure that the needs of the students and the ENC community a put first before any other matter. Our President truly desires t build community on our campus, and that true desire is what make Dr. McClung such an amazing leader. We will forever be indebte to his tireless work and devotion to this campus. This school is better place with Dr. McClung as our President.

Dr. McClung exemplifies what it means to be a servan leader. I would like to personally thank Dr. McClung and his wif Linda, for their dedication, devotion and tireless efforts to serv our beloved school. Thank You

Dear Class of '04,

Thanks for being a part of my life. I have high expectations for each of you.

Why do I have high expectations? First, because I have prayed for each of you by name. My prayer for you is that the Lord will bless you with wisdom. I believe that you will make effective choices.

Second, I have high expectations for you because I have observed how you have matured in your relationships with one another. Living together in a community like Eastern Nazarene College is a great preparation for success in life. I know that you will have productive relationships throughout your lives.

Third, I am confident that you are leaving ENC with a great education. The understandings that you gained while studying at ENC will serve you well

Go with my prayers and best wishes.

Warmest Regards

J. David McClung

SENIORS

Dear Seniors,

It is so hard to believe it is the end of the semster and we will be embarking on new journeys in so many different directions. Some of us will be getting married, some of us will be going back to school, some of us will be starting new jobs, and some of us have no idea where we will be a year from now.

The graduation milestone invokes feelings of nervousness, excitement, anticipation, and even sadness to be leaving our friends and what has become comfortable over these last four years. Although these emotions can become overwhelming at times it is comforting to know God is right here with us. In this time of uncertainty Proverbs 3:5-6 can be comforting. "Trust in the Lord with all your heart and lean not on your own understanding; in all your ways acknowledge him and he will make your paths straight." I have been familiar with this verse for many years, but in times like this it becomes very meaningful.

As this year comes to a close it is nice to reflect on events we've shared. We all had a blast jumping forward half a century and playing bingo together dressed like our grandparents. We even had some participants go so far as to shave their heads bald for authenticity. We also had a lot of fun doing something for those less fortunate by trick or treating for canned goods to support the Quincy Crisis Center on Halloween. We went out dressed in a variety of ways from Ninja turtles to Twinkies and had a blast. We then were able to donate a full truckload to the QCC. We have had some successful fundraisers with the sale of Krispy Kreme Doughnuts and Salt Scrubs at the Homecoming Street fair. We are currently working on the rose sale for Valentines Day and are hoping for a huge success. I am looking forward to more fun in the planning of Mr. ENC, another service project, as well as the Class trip to the Yarmouth Resort for one last hurrah.

I want to take the time now to thank my council Chris Greco, Russ Milburn, Shawn Grosvenor, Addison Cooper and our advisor, Stacey Barker, for all their help in the planning and executing of our events, service projects and fundraisers. I have really appreciated all their hard work and support.

Through the years our class has experienced many wonderful times together. I want to thank all of you for making my experience here at ENC such a memorable one. I cannot wait to start planning all the reunions just to see what 5, 10, 15, 25... years does for everyone. I hope the memories you have made here at ENC are just as wonderful for you as they are for me. I cannot wait to add more in the last couple of months. We will tell stories of these memories for a lifetime, thank you all for being a part of mine!

My prayer when I came to ENC was for a Christian friend but like most prayers God gave me way more than I ever expected through Bible studies, sports, ministries, events on campus ('03 Lip Sync Champs), or just talking with friends. Thanks to my family, friends, mentors, Ramon, and Jesus for making these years so amazing. I love you all!! Prov. 3:5-6

by John MacLeod

Time is passing, never slowing down.
This room is so rich in memory, both sight and sound.
The smiling faces of all the friends that we know so well,
4 years of stories that all of us must tell.

Now we're running fast, running out of room,
Or so it seems.
But the truth is that it's really time for us
To chase our dreams.

This is us, we are kids grown up,
But our lives have just begun.
Give and take, learn from our mistakes,
And tomorrow we'll be stronger.
We must know this is not the end,
This is a new beginning.

This big milestone of reaching graduation,
Has left me filled with a bittersweet sensation.
And all the things we've said and done,
What's gotten us this far.
The choices we have made have made us who we are.

Hold on to the memories.
Don't be scared of what the future brings.
Hope and faith will take us there.
Don't forget me, I won't forget you, I swear.

Imagine what it would be like to meet your soul mate senior year of high school and then marry that person before your senior year of college. Addison and Noel Cooper did just that. They met at an encounter weekend when they were seniors and then met up again freshman year. They were soon engaged at then end of that year, in May. Although many believe this is the history of ENC couples, Addison and Noel truly do have a beautiful and special relationship.

In asking them questions about their decisions to marry so early and what their lives are like now, I was astounded at how well they compliment each other so early on in their marriage. They work very well together in many different ways. I saw this through the way they communicated together and responded to each other.

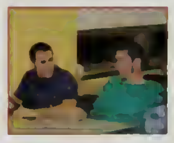
I asked Addison and Noel why they decided to marry in college and Addison responded by saying that he had asked his family, her family, and his pastor if it was appropriate or not. He said he got a positive response from each of them. But the most important thing he did was pray about it. Addison said he prayed a great deal and felt that God blessed the relationship. Noel responded to the question by saying; "Three years is an awfully long time to be engaged," which they both laughed at.

They said that they are now able to spend more time together then before they were married, yet they do have to make more of an effort to see their friends. They agreed that although there is more of a workload, it is rewarding to live in Young because they can have coed friends visit them.

What Addison and Noel most like about married life is the time they are now able to spend with each other. "I enjoy the companionship that we have" Noel said. Addison mentioned they have great communication skills and are quick to forgive. They both agreed that it's nice not to have walls build up. Then Addison quickly added that its nice not to have to share a bathroom with forty guys.

The couple has become very comfortable with each other. I was able to see this in the way they responded to each other. It was such a delight to interview this couple. I learned a great deal from their relationship. It is one based on love, commitment, and most importantly God.

Meet The Coopers



What has theater at ENC meant to me? It has been my world for the time I have been here; Cove, the building, all of the shows I've been in and helped out with, my friends in the department, and my professors. The number one thing they all have shown me is that I am more than I ever thought I could be. The Communication Arts Department has pulled, stretched, and shaped me as an actor and a person more than I ever thought was possible. They made me realize that even though I will graduate this year, I will always be a student, and even when I am not on stage, I will always be acting. I have found teachers, mentors, friends, and family in the Communication Arts Department that I could not have gotten through college without. I have lived in Cove for the past three years, and in that time there has been many long hours of classes, practicing, rehearsals, and meetings, but there also has been tons of fun-filled memories that I will never forget. Eunice and Misti have not only been great to work with in class and on stage, but they have been an inspiration to me, and so much fun to talk and be with. All of my friends in the department have been so much fun to work with and have come together many times to work hard on each show, on stage and off. Theater at ENC is time wasted and time well spent, hard work and much needed fun, but most important of all, an experience that I could not have lived without and one that I will never forget.

When one looks back on college, it's the social aspects that stand out the most. There is often something going on around the campus of ENC that gives its students something to do when they are not bogged down by books and papers. The pulse behind this social life for the last two years has been none other than Keri Miller.

As a freshman, staring off her legacy at ENC, she was known for her baggy pants, chokers, and crazy hair. She would admit that later she was able to see this as a strong cry for attention. It wasn't until growing into a deeper relationship with Christ did she find an identity within him. Gone were the days of trying to stand out.

Sophomore year brought about the death of "Punk Keri". It also happened to be the same year that she ran for the Executive SGA position of Social Life. Before this she had already had some experience on the ENC social life committee, but nothing to this magnitude. She was anxious about having what it took for the job. Like the situation ENC will be facing when Keri leaves, during her election year she would be replacing Amanda Flowers, anther two-year social life rep.

Over the next two years, Keri would make her steps toward growth so strong that her footprints will be felt at ENC for years to come. Her first event planned was in the spring semester of her election year. It is tradition for the incoming social life rep to plan the annual lip sync. That year 187 people turned up for the show. There were only three acts, but i still stands as one of Keri's biggest events. About running an event she said, "I love the energy...its all crazy all the time." Although that event was huge, her favorite event planned was the Justin McRoberts concert during the NSLC Week of 2003.

Eccentric but at the same time spiritual, goofy at the same time profound; after two years of our socials lives planned out by Miss Keri Miller, one wonders who can ever step up and keep the ball going.

Tribute to a Friend

N. Neal Paradise, the man, the myth, the living legend. I would like to take a few moments to tell you about a young man that I know by the name of Norman. Norman is an averagely tall man at 5'9" and has somewhat blond hair. Beyond these completely unremarkable characteristics however is a deep man.

Neal is a Senior english major this year at ENC, though he has had to take the rest of the year off. He likes music, art, drama and long walks on the beach. Neal has been involved in many things here on campus and his eclectic interests have contributed much to the campus' well being. He ran a weekly radio program his jr. year that introduced the ENC community to a few of Neal's favorite bands such as the Smashing Pumpkins, and Dream Theater. Neal also enjoys the drama here at ENC and was excited to play parts in several directing scenes and also in the Crucible. Just this past semester Neal worked very hard on his own directing of "the Sandbox" which was wonderfully done.

Neal's primary passion, however, is writing. Neal is doing a lot of reading these days and is excited about writing still. He is a gifted poet and has been published before. Neal also enjoys writing short stories. A project that Neal hopes to get to soon is screen play about Galileo and the Church. This idea spawns from the famed Dr. Giberson in the notorious EMES with Gibersons quote "If Hollywood wants a good drama they should do Galileo vs. the church...."

So that, my friends, is Norman Neal Paradise in a nutshell. We hope to see Neal back again soon!

Coming to ENC my freshman year, I expected, like many of us, the cliché of this four year long Nazarene Church camp that contained a lot of "spiritual highs" and fun activities. I knew that with the plethora of worship activities going on, I could be "in church" all the time. I was right, but left out something crucial, which at first I took no notice of. It was all to easy to go from the stress of life to the "high" of worship time in chapel, and then feel "satisfied" as though my need for fellowship with God had been completely fulfilled. Thankfully, there are a variety of accountability structures here that helped me get out of the spiritual rut I found myself in. I had simply taken them for granted. For one thing, my friends and I began to keep each other accountable in spending time with God. I began praying with my best friend. We met regularly in the mornings to pray for each other, our spiritual walks, our families, and the campus. Accountability is important because just when I was tempted to sleep in, my phone would ring and Cara would say, "Are you coming?" Not only did that help me develop spiritual disciplines, but also that bond is one I will cherish forever. A Cappella Choir has been a second family to me, as well as a source of accountability. In rehearsal times that we have dedicated to praying together for each other, we became very close brothers and sisters, helping each other in our walks. So, if I had taken for granted the fact that I was going to a Christian school (as I very nearly did), then ENC would not have had the profound impact upon my spiritual growth as it has. Being here has shown importance of cultivating a deep relationship with God and a lifestyle of self-surrender, instead of simply filling my life with "church" activities. -Melody Santor

Reflection on the Past

Four years is a long time in the life of the college student. Even the current freshman, by the time they read this book, will hardly be able to recognize themselves. Such is the case for Kylie Streams. If you were to ask her about change, you would hear something like this: "If the freshman me met the me of today, she'd probably think I was a sell out, but I probably want to kick her in the teeth."

Kylie has one of those personalities that will leave a gaping hole in the campus of ENC come graduation. Her smile, her laugh, and her spirit will be sorely missed, but the Kylie that will walk across the stage in May is not the same girl that came to school four years ago.

She calls her old self "weird." Her freshman year she was called "The Pink Girl." Known for her loud style and ever changing hair color, she had the pizzazz to stand out of the crowd, but she now acknowledges her desperate cry for attention. Along with that cry, her and her inseparable friend, Keri Miller, would often be seen buzzing around campus in fairy wings, along with holding their own personal theme weeks.

While this was going on, Kylie would still consider herself an atheist. It wasn't until a faithful meeting of friends on a walk home from CVS did she get into fellowship and started to gain a deeper understanding of Christ and his grace. It was with her friends, Keri, Ann-Marie Sousa, and Lisa Albano did God create an opportunity to speak to Kylie in ways she hadn't heard before.

Along the year's through deeper faith, prayer for Christian friends, and missions, Kylie has been given the insight to look back on her past and learn. When asked what she would want to tell a girl like her coming into ENC from high school, she answered, "You're not ready to date. There is such an emphasis on engagement at this school. Everyone should just take time out to focus on God."

The 2004 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges will include the names of 18 students from Eastern Nazarene College who have been selected as national outstanding campus leaders.

Campus nominating committees and editors of the annual directory have included the names of these students based on their academic achievement, service to the community, leadership in extracurricular activities and potential for continued success.

They join the elite group of students from more than 2,300 institutions of higher learning in all 50 states, the District of Columbia and several foreign nations. Outstanding students have been honored in the annual directory since it was first published in 1934.

SOCIOLOGY/PHYCHOLOGY
& BUSINESS MINOR

I've been incredibly blessed these past four years at ENC. Life has not always been perfect or error-less, but overall I'll look back on these years with a smile. No I won't miss sitting in class, mandatory meetings, or the hairballs in the community showers. Hard to believe, I know. However, I will miss the opportunity to grow and change with so many amazing people. I know the institution of ENC has had a great impact on developing my mind and faith; but it is the people that have opened up my world to new ways of thinking, living and loving...and of course to new ways of having fun.

Addison Cooper

SOCIAL WORK

ENC was where God touched me. I was brought from a high-school kid with an immature faith into a young adult knowing that I need to, and I really can, rely on God. "When you seek me with all your heart, you will find me." (My paraphrase of Jeremiah 29: 13). God has been faithful. He has also blessed me with an awesome, caring, loving, beautiful friend in my wife, great families, and awesome friends.

Noel C. Cooper

PSYCHOLOGY

My time at ENC has been simply amazing. I've grown a lot and deepened spiritually. I've learned a lot in almost all my classes and had hilarious times with my friends. I wouldn't have traded these last four years for anything else on earth. Philippians 3:10-14.

To my friends: Thank you all for all you've been to me. Words cannot express my gratitude.

To those of you who have ever felt tired of all the work - as I know I often have - a few words from my favorite song:

You better not look down, if you want to keep on fightin'. Put the hammer down, keep it full speed ahead. You better not look back, or you might just wind up cryin'. You can keep it moving, If you don't look down.

It has been a long road to graduation and I could not have done it without the help from some very special people. I would like to thank my parents, my brother Jeff, all my professors, all my friends, and my fiancé Laurie for all their guidance, support, and encouragement. I would also like to thank Coach Reid, Coach Anderson, and all my teammates over the years for being my family. You all will hold a special place in my heart and will not forget the times I had here at ENC.

BIOLOGY

Through the past four years spent at ENC, the single most important thing that I have learned is that God's faithfulness is truly amazing and powerful. As a freshman, I had hopes that I would be stretched and challenged, and God surely did both of those things through academics, my spiritual walk, and in my relationships with others. While at ENC I have had the priviledge to be a part of the most amazing close-knit group of girls that love God, find the best friend that I will spend the rest of my life with, receive an excellent education from professors that exemplify Christian integrity, and learn what a true community is all about. God's faithfulness is what has brought me to ENC, and these have truly been the best four years of my life.

PSYCHOLOGY

The past 4 years at ENC have been absolutely amazing. To my parents: Thank you for all the support and encouragement you have given me. I don't know where I would be without you. To my Suzy: You are the best roomie ever! Thanks for putting up with all my quirks, especially the ankle injuries and crying spurts. To my girls on 4th Young: Senior year couldn't have been better! I will miss you all so much – Heather, Jordan, Janelle. To Heather: Rooming with you this year has been awesome. Thanks for putting up with my craziness and weirdness. Never forget "Wrong Turn" and Disney World! Hurry back, hurry back! Well, somebody has to map it! =) To my wonderful fiancé Jared: You are the best thing that God has given me. I will love you always and forever.

God willing after graduation, I hope to work and possibly attend grad school. My most rewarding experiences in ENC have been characterized by spiritual growth, along with a string of experiences that attest to God's faithfulness over and over again. He has proved to be highly dependable. I have learned that service to God demands our best efforts - all for the glory of God.

Erin Ritzman
ELEMENTARY EDUCATION

Over the years here at ENC I have learned many lessons. The hardest lesson for me was to learn to walk by faith. I'm a control freak-I'll admit it! I like to have a plan and follow it through. It was hard to let go of some of the dreams that I had for myself and trust that God had a plan for me. Martin Luther said it best, "I have held many things in my hands and have lost them all. But that which I have placed in God's hands, these I still possess." God's way is always best.

Heather Smith
HISTORY

This has been a crazy journey! Freshman year, I felt a lot like Dorothy in the Wizard of Oz. I can almost hear myself say, "Jesse, I don't think we're in Dudley anymore." But I stayed, made some friends, joined some clubs, and before I knew it, I too was a part of this place.

I want to thank God first and foremost. He carried me through these four years, from class to class, country to country and never ever has given me any reason to doubt that he will not be there for the rest of my journey.

Michelangelo wrote "I saw the angel in the marble and carved until I set him free."
I may be still looking for my marble, but at least I have a goal.

BIOLOGY/PRE-MED

People don't believe me that I have been to multiple professors homes for dinner or that fellow students will sacrifice nights to help me study, but it is part of the difference of ENC. While demanding excellence; servant leadership has been demonstrated from the administration to the staff to the students and has fostered great change in me.

Any success in my life is simply a demonstration of God's grace. Thank you to my professors, my friends and my family for being images of His grace to me.
And thank you my loving Father and Friend to You be all glory and honor.

My four years at ENC have truly been among the best years of my life. Every aspect of my future has in someway been shaped by my time at this institution. I have grown so much academically, spiritually, and relationally. In light of this fact, I would like to take the time to thank a few people: all of my professors including Dr. Oord, Dr. Malas, Prof. Shea, and Prof. Barker for helping me further my academic studies.Everyone I've played ball with through intramurals or in pick-up games including Mark (Yert!), J Cog, Jay Mac, Kauffman and many others.My family and grandparents without whom none of this would be possible. I have thoroughly enjoyed my time here at ENC and have many people to thank. I had a pretty good idea of what I wanted to study coming into ENC and from the very beginning my professors encouraged me and helped create opportunities for me to pursue my goals.

One person in particular I would like to acknowledge is Eileen Melkonian. Eileen is ENC's Certified Athletic Trainer. Eileen was very helpful to me as I studied information relating to the human body. Not a week goes by that I don't recall something she taught me or helped me learn. I appreciate her very much. Thanks Eileen!

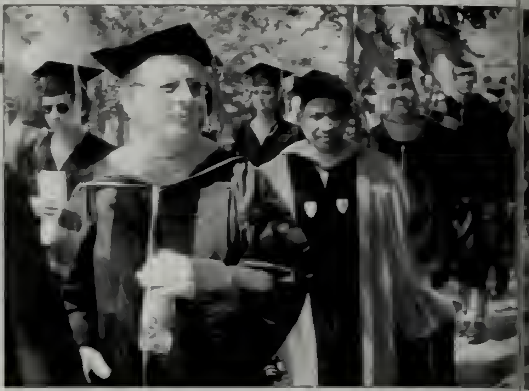
EASTERN NAZARENE COLLEGE



The Classical Difference

FACULTY AND STAFF

The faculty and staff of Eastern Nazarene College make the difference. Their classical style forms the tradition and authority this school calls for. What they do for the students is irreplaceable. Whether it be through their lectures, sermons, financial accounting, and cleaning, they constantly serve the students with such wonderful spirits. The student body is blessed to have such a diverse selection of faculty and staff to help get them through this monumental part in their lives. The difference they make on those around them is sometimes unnoticed yet it is never unseen by God. What makes the difference is their willingness to cater to the specific needs of the student body. There is a great deal of sacrifice that is wholly appreciated. The faculty and staff are the classical difference in the ENC community.

Divine providence, as some might call it, declared that Barker's first year at ENC would also be then-chaplain Mike Schutz's last year, as he was called to minister elsewhere. In the time following his departure, there began a dialogue about who would fill his shoes. In this dialogue, there were undercurrents suggesting Barker should take the position, but others felt that asking him to serve as chaplain in addition to his full-time teaching was simply too much to ask of him. Soon, a balance was reached in which Barker could continue to teach full-time and still be the school's chaplain.

Pastor Jeff Barker had a few words of advice for the students at ENC. He recommends "[making] wise choices with how you spend your time. These choices will form your choices in other areas. Use your time purposefully." It is clear, seeing his background, calling, and plans for this year, that Barker is using his time as chaplain purposefully, and, without a doubt, God will use him to bless the entire campus.

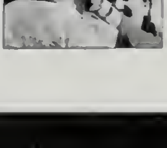
Professor Jeff Barker



Some of you may have noticed a new face among the faculty spring semester. Professor Don Easton-Brooks joined the Psychology/Sociology department this spring, now teaching four classes, and in a very unique way.

One major difference that students in his Introduction to Psychology, Lifespan Development, and Introduction to Sociology classes have noted is his method of students taking each of his tests three different times, each one having a random set of questions with student scenarios. One of the reasons he decided to structure his tests this way is because he has seen that "in life we can take tests more than once," and many times we learn more by doing something multiple times.

It is clear that Easton-Brooks is first and foremost concerned with students and the quality of their education. He has mentioned that he wants students to know the learning process more than he wants them to be concerned about their grade. "Big universities don't have this opportunity," he says from experience. ENC has hopefully brought him the kind of Christian, small school setting that he can work best in. Professor Easton-Brooks has brought ENC a refreshing outlook to our classrooms, clearly showing his concern and dedication to his work.

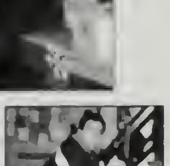
The Soul Impact UNDERCLASS

The underclassmen of Eastern Nazarene College have made a strong impact on this campus. Each individual student affects another whether they know it or not. There is a great deal of servanthood among the student body, which is seen in everyday activities. These include sitting with someone at lunch who was sitting alone, holding a door for someone whose arms were full, cheering the Crusaders on, the junior class raising money for the junior-senior, and the community service that each individual class participates in.

The underclassmen are a group of individuals who collaborately provide the school with new ideas, different cultures, a vast array of personalities, and many differnt denominations. But as a whole they are a group of students who have one faith. How students carry themselves, influence those around them which ultimately changes the atmosphere of the campus from year to year. This is a campus of continuous transition which in turn makes it a campus much renewed.



The Juniors

CLASS OF 2005

To the Class of 2005,

Wait a minute! This is the end of the 2004 school year? So, that means we are Seniors now, right? Where did the last three years go? What will my new role be on campus next year? Will I remain in contact with my friends I've made here after school? What does God have in store for me after ENC?

If you're anything like me, these are just a few of the thoughts that run through your mind when you think about your last year of college. Much like our freshman year, we are about to enter a new time in our lives where we must step out of our comfort zone and acclimate ourselves to a new lifestyle. However, along the many uncertainties that we may be facing going into next year, we are also met with a few assurances that might comfort you. This Christian college community will continue stand behind you, academically, socially, and spiritually as you explore God's will for your life.

As you continue your journey, remember that God is there to light your way. Lean on Him in both times of success and times of need and He will carry you through. We have much to look forward to this next year including both intimidating responsibilities and enjoyable social activities. Still, take some advice from Ferris Bueller. "Life moves pretty fast. If you don't stop and look around once in a while, you could miss it."

Through Christ all things are possible.

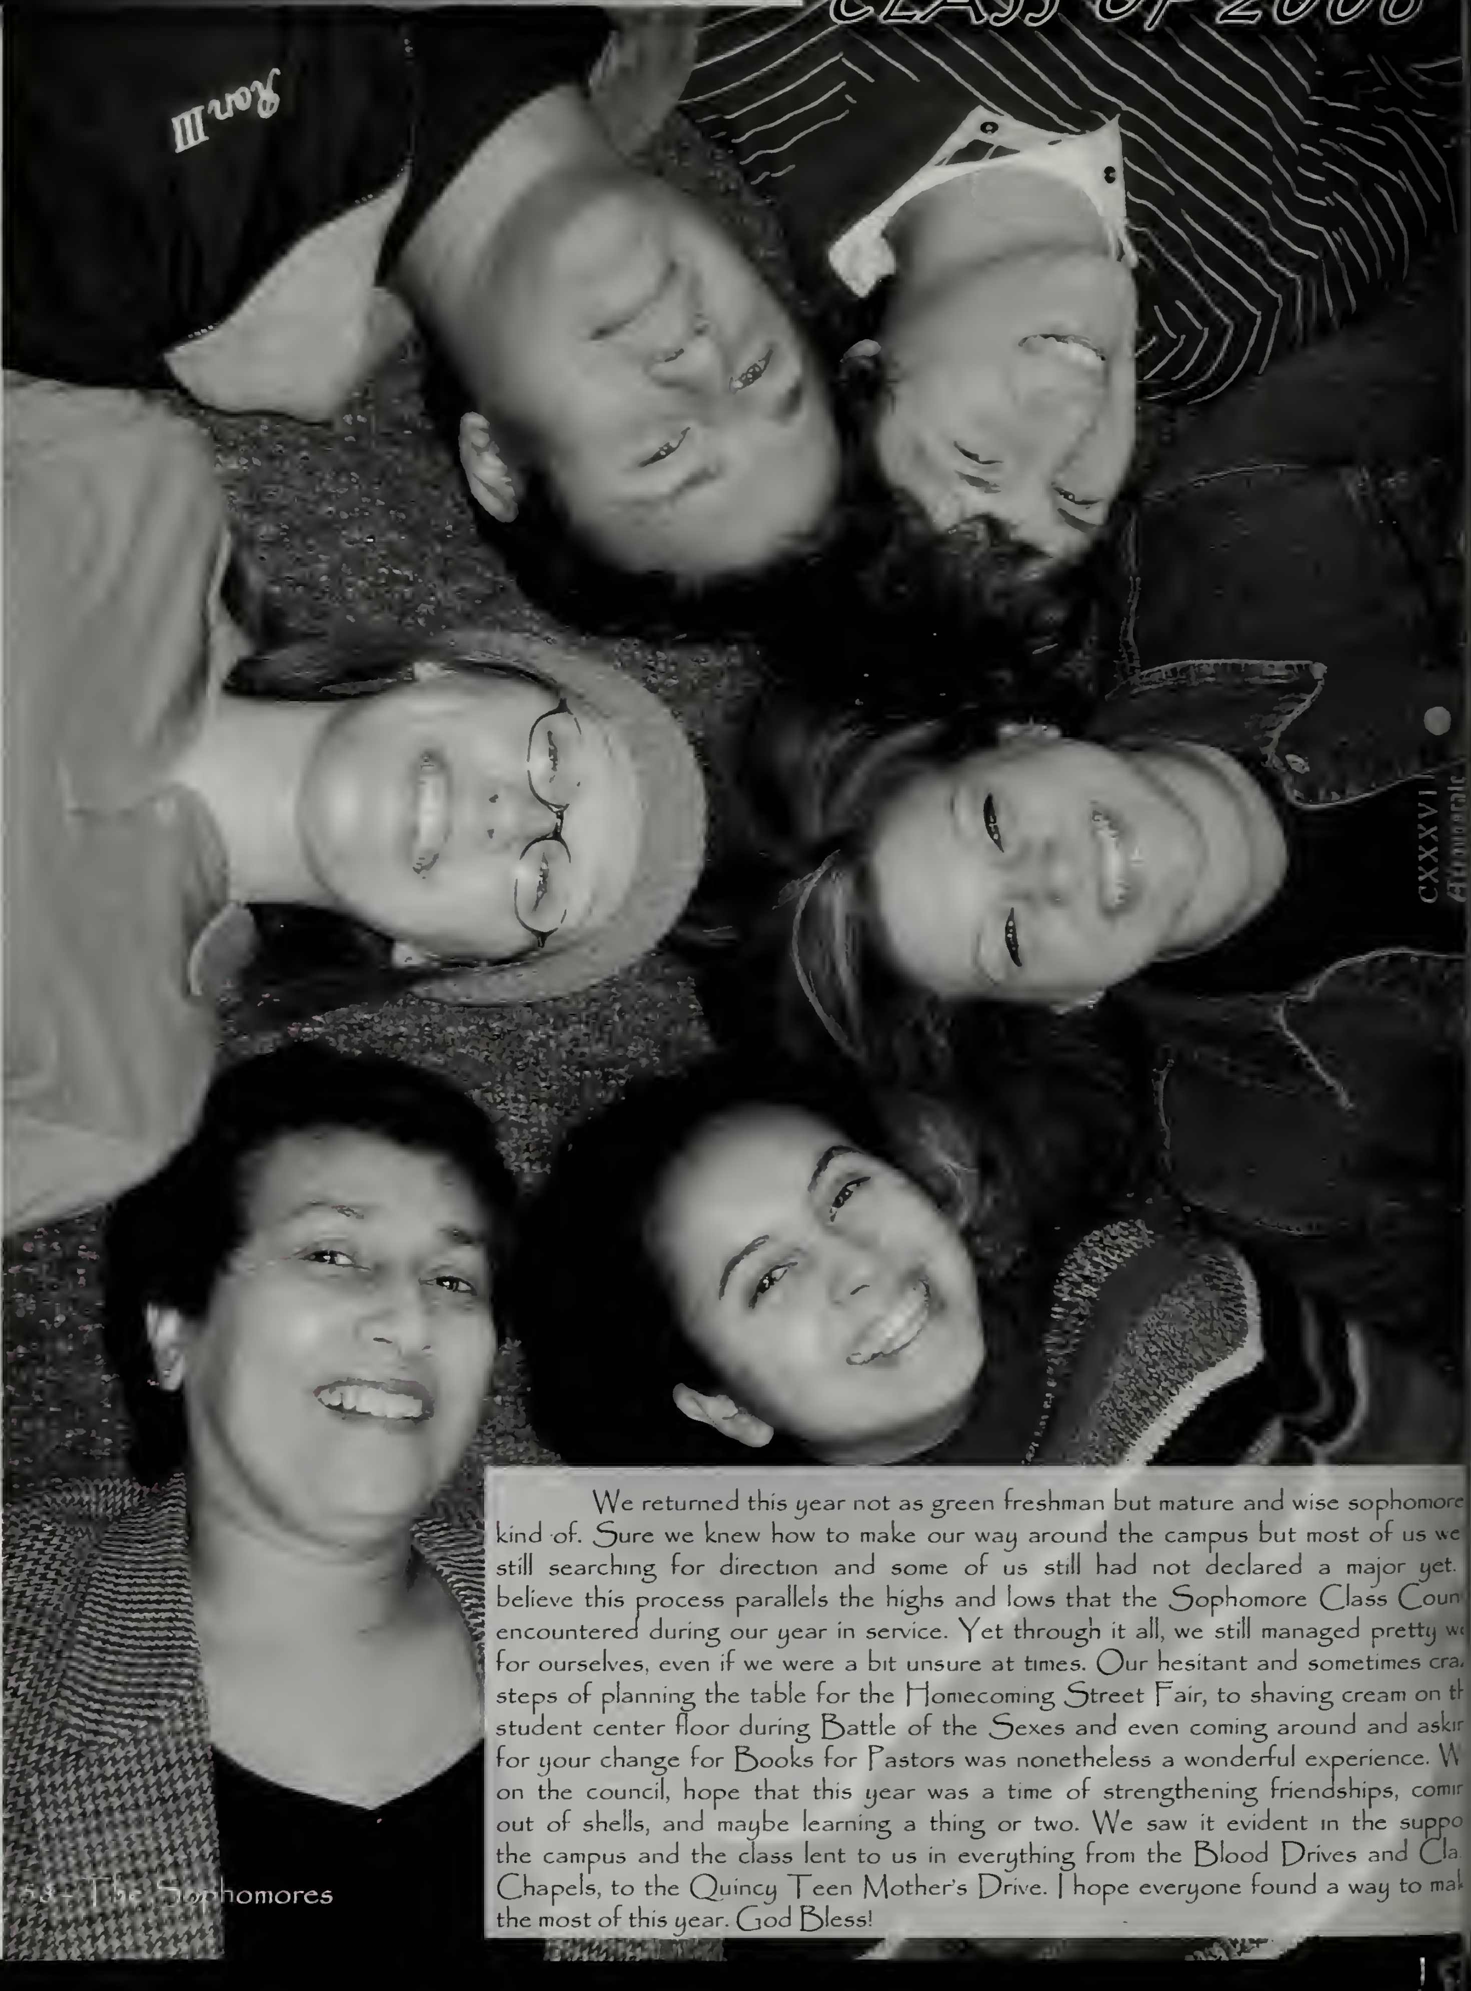
The Sophomores

CLASS OF 2006



We returned this year not as green freshman but mature and wise sophomore kind of. Sure we knew how to make our way around the campus but most of us we still searching for direction and some of us still had not declared a major yet.
believe this process parallels the highs and lows that the Sophomore Class Coun encountered during our year in service. Yet through it all, we still managed pretty w for ourselves, even if we were a bit unsure at times. Our hesitant and sometimes cra steps of planning the table for the Homecoming Street Fair, to shaving cream on th student center floor during Battle of the Sexes and even coming around and askir for your change for Books for Pastors was nonetheless a wonderful experience. W on the council, hope that this year was a time of strengthening friendships, comir out of shells, and maybe learning a thing or two. We saw it evident in the suppo
the campus and the class lent to us in everything from the Blood Drives and Cla Chapels, to the Quincy Teen Mother's Drive. I hope everyone found a way to mal the most of this year. God Bless!

The Freshmen

CLASS OF 2007

Since our election in September, the freshmen class council of the class of 2007 has been actively trying to involve new students in different school activities. President, Kevin Uscinski, Vice President Jake Hanson, Social Life Rep. Amber Dumond, Administrative Assistant Stacy Myers, and Chaplain Pablo Galvez worked together on a number of events and fundraising projects.

Our first project was selling popcorn and other refreshments at the Street Fair, followed by an outreach program, in which we organized people to rake the surrounding community's yards during the fall. For Christmas, we had a very successful open mic night and students did songs, poems, and even gave a dance performance. All the while, Pablo ran and organized class chapels which were all very inspirational and aimed directly towards freshmen. In March, we ran an ENC remake of "Star Search" which featured performances from nine talented groups and individuals. "Star Search" was also a success, despite problems with the fire alarms.

The Council intends to finish up the 2003-2004 school year with another community service project and fundraiser. We hope to end the year strong and we appreciate everyone's help in making this a year we'll never forget. We look forward to the next three years here at ENC and we pray that God will use the class of 2007 in mighty ways.

Sincerely,

After sitting and talking with freshman Brad Mountain, two things became apparent: he loves bas Throughout our whole conversation, getting a serious answer to any question became close to imposs joked about his dreams of becoming the sixth member of The New Kids on the Block and complained a The only time, throughout the whole interview, I could get his concentration was when I mentioned the side out of Brad.

While Brad played every sport growing up, when he reached high school, his focus was on base Year" his freshman year and All Conference both junior and senior year. He was even invited to try out year. The baseball program here was a monumental factor in his decision to attend ENC this year. The Focused Performance

SPORTS

The Eastern Nazarene College Crusaders have a competitive NCAA Division III athletics program, where the performance of each player shines in their daily performance during practices, games, and meets. These ten teams come together each season to play their hardest through a much focused effort. As well as individual strengths, each player contributes to the whole team which perseveres to go above and beyond.

The outcome of the game displays the spirit of the team as well as the fans. For example, when the ENC Crusaders beat the Fighting Scots of Gordon with an 80-73 score. With a great number of fans sporting red t-shirts and the men's basketball team pumped up, we were able to conquer a much desired feat. The Crusaders have always worked hard to give ENC the type of sports team they can be proud of. This, in turn, is seen through the focused performance of each player.

The ENC Women's Soccer team had their best season yet this fall, finishing with the best record in the history of the women's soccer program. Ending the season with a 5-11-2 record (3-7-2 conference), the Lady Crusaders finished ninth in the Commonwealth Coast Conference, one seed short of clinching a spot in the conference playoffs. They took three conference teams into double overtime, losing a tough game against Curry with a minute remaining, and ending with ties against UNE and Roger Williams University.

Senior sweeper Sarah Dix helped organize the defense, leading the Lady Crusaders to conclude their season with three consecutive shutout victories. The first shutout against Regis College brought the first Homecoming victory in the history of the women's soccer program, and the second kept Colby Sawyer from making the conference playoffs. In addition to their defensive efforts, senior attacker Kristen Rivera set the school record for most career goals scored. This team has grown immensely over the course of the 2003 season, and is looking forward to an even more successful season in 2004!

ENC'S RISING STARS

Kristen Rivera

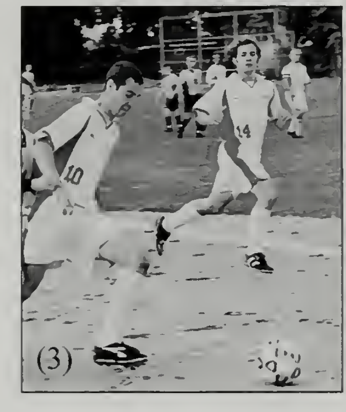
For me, soccer has been an activity that has shown me who I really am. It is a passion that brings out the good and the bad in me. Thankfully, it has mostly been the good rather than the bad. Playing for ENC for the past four years has brought out every emotion I could think of. I have won, I have lost, I have played to exhaustion and have given my all. I have cried, but most importantly I have laughed too. I am so thankful for the girls I have played with. They will forever be in my heart. I will never regret my time spent playing for ENC.

Bethany Bar

"It has been a privalege to play with the women on the soccer team. It has been hard work but in the end it was all worth it."

MEN'S SOCCER

1: Jesse Ciras, Andrew Tetrault, Dan Gonzalo, Chris Kauffman, Carson Wolf, and Jimmy Gardner spent their last year on the soccer field together while setting high standards for the younger players. 2: The Fight. 3: Evan Watters pushes off his opponent to sprint up the wing. 4: Senior Chris Kauffman veers off to the left to fly by the defending team.



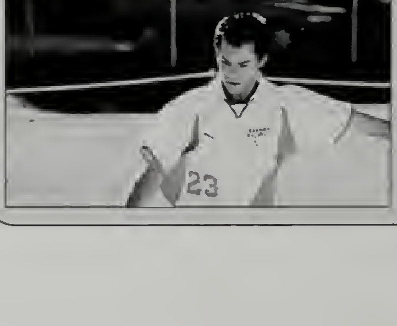
This fall when pre-season started there was much excitement in the air after last year's success. For the seniors, this was a culmination of the building of a team that was started four years ago. For the underclassmen, it was their opportunity to play the role of the final pieces of the puzzle for a CCC championship. The season began with a bang and a great win over a team ENC had failed to beat for five straight years. Unfortunately, wins throughout the season did not come as easily as the first. As a team, there were many obstacles that needed to be fixed both on and off the field. There were many times that the team played up to its potential. At the same time, the team often settled for mediocrity, which led to a tough road throughout the season. In the end, despite the disappointments endured, there was a greater appreciation for the importance of what it means to be a team, this lesson will surely prove valuable next year.

-Jesse Ciras

ENC'S RISING STARS

James Gardner

Geese love to congregate and leave all sorts of stuff on our soccer field. Finally; during a practice my sophomore year, the whole team decided to chase a flock of geese off our field. We all charged towards them screaming but they only started to fly off once we got within 15 yards or so. As they took off, I, at the head of the pack, decided to send an extra message by kicking a ball at one of them. As I watched the flight of the ball it became increasingly clear that it was headed straight for one of the stragglers. It would be nice if I could aim at the net as well as I did at this goose. I threw my hands on my head and grimaced as the unlucky bird fell to the ground. I felt really bad for a second but then it got up and flew away. We all laughed about it but I always look over my shoulder now when I see a bunch of geese together. I don't know if they are vengeful animals or not but they still make me nervous.



Andrew Bove

This soccer season was a grea learning experience for me personall and I'm sure it was also one for us as team. I am very excited and confiden going into next year and I can't wai to see what is in store for our team

WOMEN'S VOLLEYBALL

This year's Women's Volleyball team made great strides towards establishing ENC as a team to be reckoned with in the Commonwealth Coast Conference. They finished this season 20-10 (7-2 in the CCC), adding seven more wins to last year's record of 13-15. The team beat the University of New England in Lahue Gymnasium in a thrilling five game match to make it to the conference semi-finals, where they bowed out at Gordon College against the hated rivals in three games.

However, for those looking to exact revenge, next year holds much promise. The volleyball team is not losing a single player to graduation next year so they look to be harder, better, faster, and stronger next year. Coach Derek Schmitt fully expects the team to win more than 20 games and make it to the conference championships next year.

Some of the players who will help to make that possible are setter Molly Wakefield and middle hitter Amber Crow, both of whom were named to the First Team All-Conference accompanied by middle hitter Courtney Kosmerl, who made Second Team All-Conference.

Be sure to keep your eyes and ears open next fall for what looks to be an outstanding volleyball season. With a full host of stellar returning players and a few talented freshmen, the ENC Women's Volleyball team will be a force to be reckoned with.

ENC'S RISING STARS

The team this year is totally different than any team I've played on before. The girls are amazing and I love the fact that we never give up.

Molly Wakefield

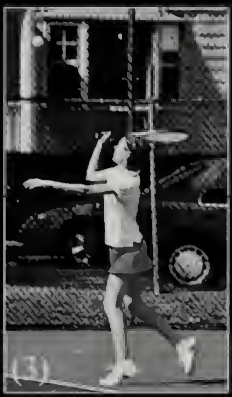
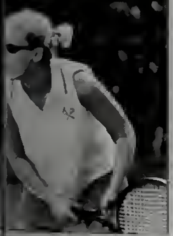
1: Shavonne Brumfield squints into the sun waiting for the perfect second to swing her racket. 2: Jessica Travers waits in anticipation for the opposite team to serve the ball. 3: Sophomore Molly Trevathan watches the ball, intent on slamming it past her opponent.

Tennis this fall season was awesome. We came back from summer break ready and willing to do whatever the coach had set for us. During pre-season the team worked on many things with Coach Hardee who continued to put us to the test, making sure that they we were fit and ready to go through the season. Hardee's main focus was trying to instill in the team the use of the cross-court shots and make every hit count.

Lissa Tovar and Sarah Wineland, the only freshmen, brought a lot of strength to the team. They had a great attitude and were very eager to learn new things. Returning sophomores Molly Travathen and Jessica Travers, junior Shavonne Brumfield, and seniors Amy Borden and Denise Mingledorf brought back their talents and they were better than ever. Everyone on the team has their own individual strengths, making the team better as a whole. Our team became so much stronger and we accomplished the goals of the season and for the first time in a long time we made it to the quarterfinals! We may have lost but we made it and that's all that mattered to us. Now we just have to kick it up a notch for next year and I know we can do it!



ENC'S RISING STARS



Denise Mingledorff

Playing Varsity Tennis the past 4 years has been one of the greatest things I've experienced at ENC. I'm definitely going to miss all the fun times with my girls on the team...playing in the snow at Nichols, always getting lost in Salem, eating out after away matches, and eating at coach's house for dinner. We've improved so much since I started playing here, and this year our record was 6-9, making us eligible to play in the first round of the CCC Tournament! As a senior, I couldn't have asked for a better gift.

Sarah Wineland

ve always wanted to play tennis, but I never got the chance. So this year's season was such an xciting opportunity for me. It was challenging ce I had to learn a new sport, but the team was ery encouraging and supportive. I had a great first season, and I can't wait to do it again next year!

CROSS COUNTRY

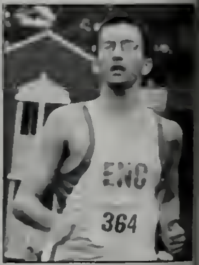
1 The Men's Cross Country Team takes their first step in the Homecoming race. 2: Ashley Adams pushes herself to the limit at the last leg of the race. 3: Jeff and Dave hug each other to show the wacky side of the Cross Country team. 4: The Men's Team unites in prayer before their meet.

Coach Ed Gardner, in his 4th year, led the men's and women's teams to 5th and 6th place conference respectively. The men, who at the CCC meet finished a scant eight points out of 3rd place, were led by a trio of young runners including sophomore Chad Bantjes and rookies Dave Boucher and Matt Coder. The team continued its proud if not always storied ways as senior runner Aaron Wilson picked up Senior Scholar Athlete honors for the CCC. The highlight of the season came at the Homecoming Meet where most of the men's team ran personal records to edge a superior Emerson team for the first ENC Homecoming victory in recent memory.

New talent including, freshmen Rachel Cooper and Amanda Fish also inspired the women's team. The squad had to overcome the loss of last year's entire team except for veteran Jen Bodley. The women improved greatly throughout the year reducing their times steadily from the season opener. Cooper stood out and received a number of individual awards at meets during the year. Both teams will be tough next year as only two runners are graduating.

ENC'S RISING STARS

Aaron Wilson



It has been a privilege to run cross-country the past four years. Not only have I had the satisfaction of competition and personal improvement but I have gotten to know many wonderful teammates on a different level. There is no one memory that epitomizes my running career, but somewhere between getting lost in Blue Hills, teammates peeing their pants, winning this year at homecoming, and a great coach we call eddie, one begins to understand what it means to run cross-country.

Amanda Fish

Cross-country was really one of the best parts of my life this semest Practice always made me hysterically happy and I would have a ridiculously wonderful time with the others on the team. Running created tremendous inner strength in all of us; you could see it in people as they improved and drove harder for high goals. I think all people who run cross-country are a little off. You have to be somew crazy to voluntarily wake up at 7:30 in the morning on a Saturday so that you can ride in a van for two hours only to run as fast as yo possibly can in the freezing cold for 3 or 4 miles until you wish you were dead, and still want to do it again the following week.

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL

1: Captain and Junior Alison Braunius brings the ball down the sideline racing to get a lay-up 2: The ENC Women Crusaders gather round for a last minute game plan. 3: Corrie McLaughlin takes a few practice free throws before the big game. 4: Captain and Senior Vanessa Ayersman is ready to bring the rock home.

Family. If we learned one thing this season, we learned what it meant to turn a team into a family. We started practicing in October, steadily working on our conditioning, skills, and team dynamic. Each day was its' own challenge, as we learned how to work together and play as one. We hit bumps along the way, but our road ended in the play-offs, a goal we made as a family, and accomplished as a family.

Finishing the season with a record of 11 and 14, we proved that we could play with any team in our conference, but that we still have a lot of work to do in the seasons to come. We entered the season with nowhere to go but up, and monopolized our strengths to finish the season with a respectable record.

Much of our success as a team can be attributed to our commitment to work hard in practice and our sheer desire to do well. We had a lot of individual "key players," but our real mination as a team, not singling any one player out.

We certainly appreciated the supports of the ENC community this season. Our home games were always more exciting because we knew we would have a supportive crowd cheering for us the whole way. So, thank you for being a part of our triumphs and failures, and showing unwavering encouragement no matter what the outcome.

We look forward to next season with much anticipation and excitement. We have a lot to build on, namely our "family" approach to team-building success.

-Corrie McLaughlin

ENC'S RISING STARS

Vanessa Ayersman

By far this season was the best out of all four years I've played for ENC. We truly were a team -- a family. After three difficult seasons it was such a blessing to have made it to the playoffs on top of having such team unity and two wonderful coaches. God has proven Himself faithful once again in answering my prayer for blessing the team. I'm excited for all the girls playing next year; I know it will be an even better year.

Erika Natzel

The season was both more and less than I expecte That's what being the underdog does to a person. You push yourself to prove everyone wrong, and end u realizing that despite the tremendous amount of wor you still never reached your full potential. And this tea has a lot of potential. I am so excited for the next thr years with these girls. More memories, even more wins.

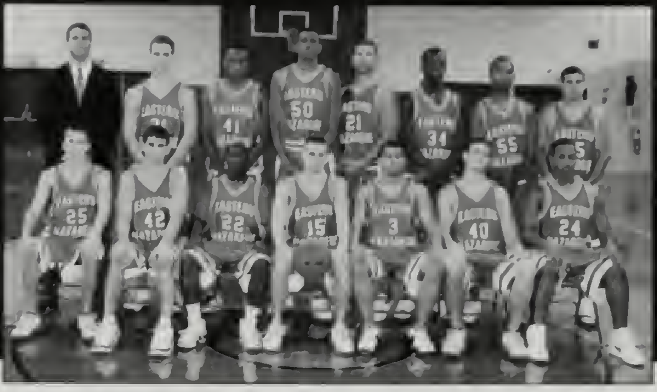
1: Matt Chewning's powerhouse drives were a key part in the Crusader's 2004 season. 2: Travis Grieb goes up from the under the basket lay-up. 3: Captain Edson Cardoso searches across the court looking for an open man.



The 2003-2004 Mens ENC Crusaders are: Edson Cardoso, Matt Chewning, Dan Bower, Derrick Bell, Chuck Terry, Ryan Ardrey, Dave Duda, Andy Jasmin, Travis Grieb, Andre Taylor, David Chriso, Craig Moore, Will Harvey, Larry Kearney, Coach Zink.

The Eastern Nazarene College men's basketball team returned in September with goals of winning the Commonwealth Coast Conference championship and earning a trip to the NCAA tournament. The crusader team lacked in height with 6'6" Jamal Lyons sitting out the year and 6'9" Larry Kearney sidelined with a knee injury. One thing the Crusaders did not lack though was heart and the ability to grow as a family. The Crusader team faced a couple of issues early in the season, but was able to pull through and focus on what needed to be accomplished. The Crusaders picked up their first win versus Emerson College and later through the year rallied on a three game win streak, which dealt in beating long time rival Gordon College. The Crusaders struggled through the season picking up wins, which resulted in no post-season play. It was the first time in three years the team had not made the playoffs.

Senior captain Matt Chewning was named honorable mentions in the league and senior transfer Dan Bower played a big role on offense and rebounding. The Crusaders return four seniors as well as underclassmen next year. The up tempo style and defensive abilities are what the Crusaders want to improve on for next year. The unselfish play of point guard Derrick Bell and scoring threat of Edson Cardoso will be some of the things to look forward to next year. Coaches Corey Zink and Kevin Roach will continue to work hard at teaching the team how to play disciplined basketball and continue to preach the importance of living for the Lord. The Crusaders want to thank all the fans for supporting the team and invite you all to come out again next year! "Thank you and God Bless"

-Edson Cardoso

ENC'S RISING STARS

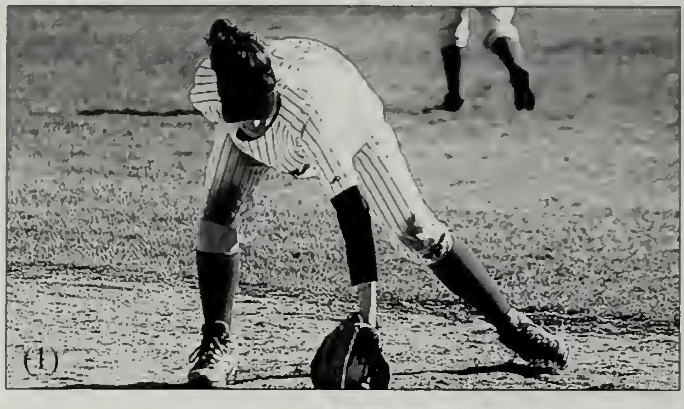
Matt Chewning

Matt Chewning brought a lot of energy and enthusiasm to games and practices. His constant dedication to the game and his teammates was infectious. His love of the game was apparent to everyone who saw him play. He led in several statistical categories as well which is very rare for a basketball player. Matt was a major contribution to our team. - Coach Corey

David Duda

Coming in as a freshman I didn't know what to expect, but as the season went on realized that each member of the team is really close to each other which made the season a great experience for me.

WOMEN'S SOFTBALL



1: Junior Pitcher Allison Braunius uses her entire body to send a fierce strike right past her opponent 2: Kathleen Hester runs right by Curry's #3, who tried in vain to get another out for her team 3: Sophomore Meghan Holt, known for her split catches, stretches her body in anticipation for the coming ball 4: Captain and lone senior Katie Lumley scopes out the field waiting for the perfect time to steal a base

The 2004 Varsity Softball Season was a grand slam. Curry College head coach, Bruce Weckworth, was quoted saying, "This is the best softball team ENC has put out in three years." And he is certainly right. The Common Wealth Conference met their match as the Lady Crusaders often lead their opponents into extra innings. Freshman Rebecca Welch and junior Allison Braunius were a dynamic duo on the pitching mound. And freshman Jen Westcott united with Co-Captin Jocelyn Darcy and junior Kaylene Huff for an all-star outfield. The Lady Crusaders made the most of their short season. The February fund raiser was as a big hit, in March the team headed to Florida for The Gene Cusic Collegiate Classic, and April was full of double-header games. Stand out attitudes from freshman Kelly Moser and sophomore Wenslynn Cordon brightened up the field on rainy days. The dedicated team pushed their bodies to the limit as proven by freshman Kristen Vasta's busted nose, catcher Kathleen Hester's broken thumb and first baseman Meghan Holt's split leg catches. Head Coach Linnea Anderson and the ENC softball program have a promising future, as co-captain Katie Lumley is the only 2004 graduate. Congratulations to this year's spirited women and good luck next spring.

ENC'S RISING STARS

Jen Wescott

I have really enjoyed playing this year. I love all the girls on the team; we are so close, spiritually and emotionally and that created a better chemistry and atmosphere for everyone. Not only was this year fantastic, but I am also greatly anticipating next season. We aren't losing any seniors and we're expecting a talented freshman class.

Jocelyn Darcy

I am always pumped up to play this sport. Playi with girls that have so much heart make softball su a great experience. All the girls on the team play w with each other and off the field we are just as clos Through all the years I have played, the team continu to grow into a close-knit family, and this year the tea keeps on surprising me with our unity and closene

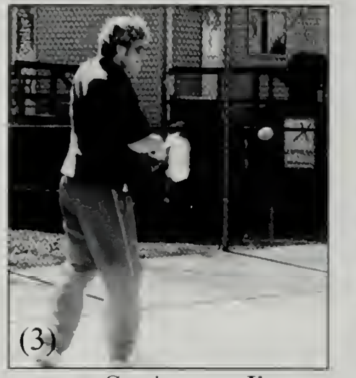
MEN'S TENNIS

1: Seniors Jimmy Gardner, Dan Zimmerman, Jared Willemin, and Doug Chapman get close to take a picture of four of the seniors, leaving the team with only three players next year 2: The other senior, Jake MacInnis recovers from slamming the ball across the net 3: Dan Zimmerman uses all the force in his body to hit the ball where his opponent cannot return it 4: Senior and Captain Jared Willemin waits for the ball to come flying out of the air right into his racket .

ENC Tennis had a solid season this year. Led by senior captain Jared Willemin along with #1 stud Craig Moore, the men's team made the playoffs for the first time in a long time.

The year started out with a spring break trip down to Hilton Head, South Carolina for a week of tennis and the beach. Though they didn't puck up a win while down there, it set the mark for the rest of the season.

With wins over Endicott, Wentworth, and arch rival Gordon, the team competed in every match it was faced with. Everyone got in on the action, including Jake MacInnis and freshmen sensation, Phil LaFountan.



Seniors Jimmy Gardner and Dan Zimmerman, along with graduate student Doug Chapman were integral parts of the team as well. Kevin Simonson had a great year with the best singles record at 9-3.

First year coach, Chris Popa, with his dedication to the program may have started a dynasty. Tell those rich boys at Salve to watch out.

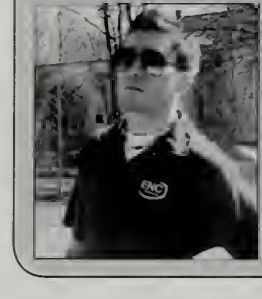
ENC'S RISING STARS

Jared Willemin

Playing tennis this year was great. The best part would have to be going down to Hilton Head Island, SC during spring break. The guys who went were some of my best friends. We had a great time just hanging out and tennis was pretty cool too! Also, getting food after matches is always a highlight for myself- we took a pounding at Cheeseburger and like kings at Boston Market!!! On a more serious note, making the playoffs was a good accomplishment for the team.



Philip LaFountain

Tennis is a lot of fun. Being outside this time of yea always great, and these guys are so awesome. They're so hilarious and we get along so well together. Popa is a a really fun coach and he makes practices fun. I'll m the senior guys next year, but I'm hoping for another season. Tennis is a lot of fun.

TThe ENC Crusader Baseball team had a break out year in 2004, passing the schools all-time wins record and setting many new records along the way. The Crusaders finished the season with a 25-9-1 record overall and finished 3rd in the CCC regular season standings with a 14-6 record. The Crusaders swept arch rival Gordon and also beat the nationally ranked Baldwin-Wallace Yellow Jackets while on their spring trip to Fort Myers, Florida! After not making the conference playoffs last season and being picked to finish the season seventh in the preseason conference polls this year, the Crusaders shocked everyone, but themselves, by making the CCC playoffs as a 3 seed and hosting the first home playoff game in six years. The Crusaders' success was based on strong leadership, durability from the pitching staff, scrappiness, hard work, team camaraderie and playing everyday like it was our last!

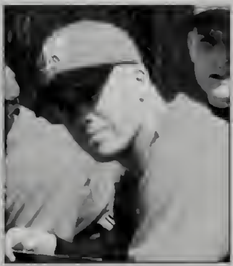
ENC'S RISING STARS

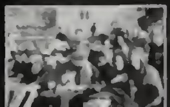
Brad Mountain

I've been playing the game of baseball since I was able to walk. Growing up in New Jersey, it was tough to find teammates that loved the "game" as much as I did. But, when I came to ENC not only did I find a close-knit group of guys who loved the game, but I also found something that you cannot find at most schools and that is a base of morals and values. So this season I have grown not only as a person but also as a person that God wants me to be.

Jay McPherson



Being a member of the baseball team was one of my greatest memories at ENC. Playing has not only forced me to grow as an athlete, but also as a leader, a friend, a musician (the baseball songs), a servant, and a man of character and integrity. There are so many memories I will never forget; trips to Ft. Myers where we bonded and played some great baseball, j-term practices where we had to run more line drills than we could count, and I'll never forget 33 stitches. It has truly been a blessing to be a part of this team, and I look forward to hearing about the future success of the ENC Crusader Baseball Team



The Core Vision

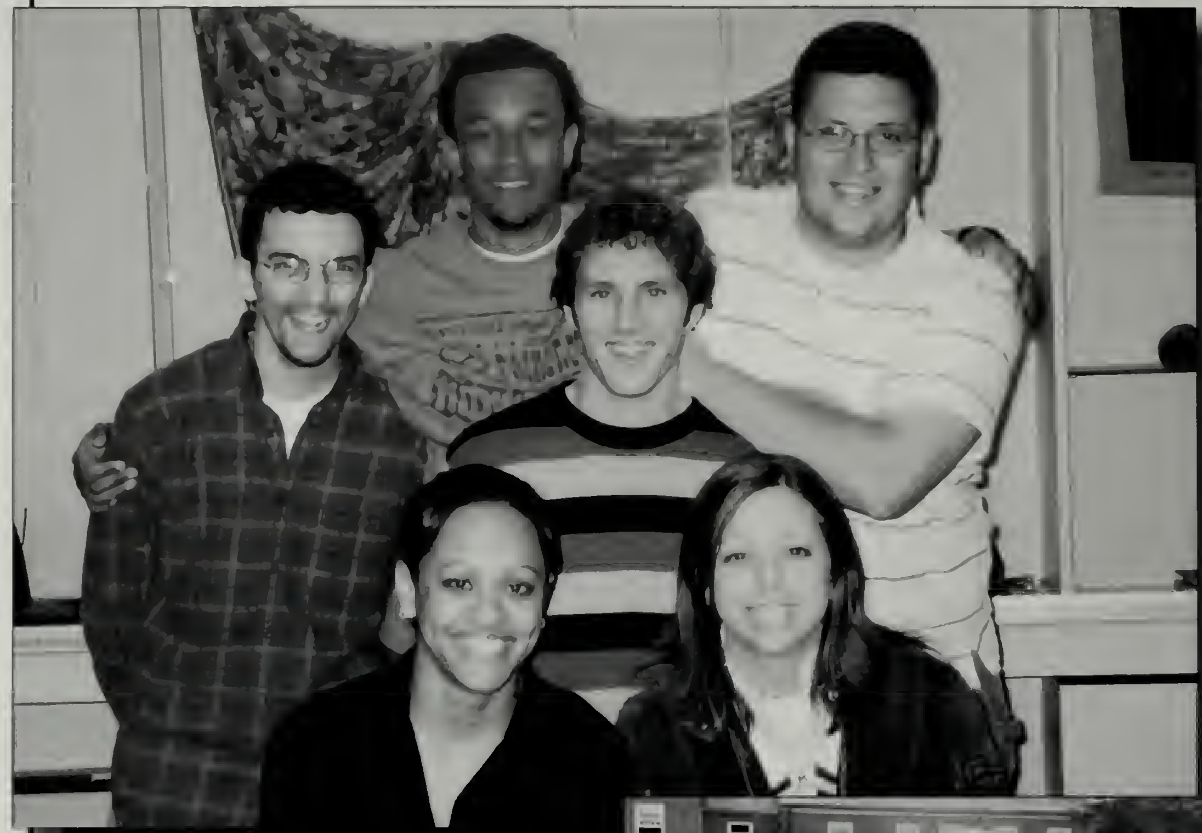
CLUBS & ORGANIZATIONS

The clubs and organizations of this community have a core vision. Each individual group meets in order to reach out to others, to inspire others, or to praise the Lord. These groups provide a way for many different students to come together as a whole to share their similar interests. They represent the core of their mission in order to spread their vision outward to the ENC community.

Each year we are proud to include new clubs and organizations to this section. This year we have a couple new groups including Best Buddies and the Dance Ministry. Best Buddies is a non-profit organization dedicated to enhancing the lives of people with mental retardation by providing opportunities for one-on-one friendships. The Dance Ministry is a group who bless the student body through their dance routines during musical performances and basketball games.

The clubs and organizations provide the campus with a core vision among all who participate. These are groups where people can express themselves individually while keeping a tradition alive.

THE STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCATION



Executive SGA: President: Jon "Tiny" Lanham, Vice President for Financial Affairs: Aaron Wilson, Administrative Assistant: Lindsey Barrett, Rec.-Life Director: Chris Kauffman, Social Life Representative: Keri Miller, Student Ministries Director: Gerson Semedo

What can I say about my SGA people, you mean so much to me, and I want to say thank you to each of you, Gerson, Keri "aka the Legend", Aaron, Lindsey, and Chris. Most students on this campus will never know how hard you all worked, or how much dedication and devotion you each have for your positions. I could not have asked for a better group of people to work with and to spend my senior year with. Through all of the crazy events, that always work out (Right Keri?), the late nights and the stressful meetings I will always carry so many fond memories of our time together. I am certain that the Lord will use each of you in some miraculous way. Good luck to all of you in the coming years, and God Bless.

Through Christ ALL Things Are Possible
Jon "Tiny" Lanham

I want to thank every General SGA member for all their hard work, dedication and devotion to their positions. You all worked so much harder than anyone asked or expected you too. Your work and leadership this year has demonstrated exactly what a student leader should look like, and how a student leader must have the heart of a servant in order to lead one's peers. I feel blessed to have worked with all of you and I trust that the Lord will use each and every one of you according to his plan. God Bless and Good Luck. Always remember, Through Christ ALL Things Are Possible,

Jon "Tiny" Lanham

The Campus Camera changed its look this year going to a tabloid layout and a full page photograph at the front of every issue. We brought back Around Town and the Top Ten, as well as adding Dear Peach Tree as our regular add-ins. We also had several feature articles that raised eyebrows around campus, including a survey article questioning racism at our school, several articles discussing the spiritual integrity of students, and even an article discussing the problem of pornography at Harvard.

This year the Nautilus yearbook has taken on a whole new look. We have decided to do a trilogy for the next three yearbooks, which will be titled The Renaissance, The Preservation, and The Culmination. This year we focused on new beginnings for ENC as a whole. We have emphasized new clubs and organizations, new athletes, new faculty, and new talent. The staff this year has done a great job bringing together all that will make up this new and improved yearbook.

Accountablity Review Board: Darren Joyce, Noel Cooper, Peaches Wilson, Shavonne Brumfield, Ana Pimentel, Becky Hurey, Sarah Wineland

The Accountability Review Board is formed to keep all student government officials accountable for their work. Through monthly checks of the Student Government folders, ARB seeks to ensure that all government officers are keeping up with their required responsibilities. The Board did an excellent job this year by faithfully giving up their time to serve the student body in a capacity that many students do not see. Yet this role is still vital for the continuation of a successful student government. Darren Joyce held the position of ARB Chairperson, and with his council of students they diligently made sure that all requirements and responsibilities were met.

The Commuter Council had a great year with coffee hours and fund raisers. There were multiple newsletters mailed out to keep the commuters in touch with events that were going on around campus. The Council's goal was to bridge the gap between the residents and commuters. It will remain a constant goal and challenge, that one day the gap between the two groups will disappear and that the commuters will feel just as part of ENC that the residents do! Praise God for his strength this year!

Commuter Council: President/Rep: Amanda Maffeo, Vice President: Jonathan Walker, Member: Sara Richard

The Christian College Democrats is a new club that was formed this year for the purpose of representing a Christian Democratic viewpoint to the student body. They are slowly accomplishing this goal through a series of lectures and general meetings used to create an open minded environment about different political viewpoints. One-by-one they are educating the students of ENC that you can in fact be both a Christian and a Democrat.

Christian College Democrats: Matt "Dutch" van Hoff: President, John P. Sullivan: Vice President, Luke Cochran: Administrative Assistant, Colin M. Chapman: Chaplain

The History Club is interesting because it's not just for history majors. Instead, we try to do a few events that are open to the whole student body in addition to some events exclusively for history majors. This year we went on a trip to the U.S.S. Constitution and had a movie night open to everyone. We also had "Finals Breaks," a Thanksgiving dinner, a Christmas party and the annual Senior Banquet for history majors. Each year we hope to grow in order to give all the students more chances to hand out, have fun and eat food while presenting some history!

Religion Club: President: Julie White, Vice President: Andrew Magnuson, Administrative Assistant: Allen Hamlin (on leave), Chaplain: Genevieve Rivera; Members: Sarah Hilton, Ben Scholl, Cara Drake, Claudia Cabrera, Jon Gianacoplis, Sarah MacPherson, Alex Manchester

As a brand new club this year, the Qoph Ayin Het Religion Club has spent a great deal of time creating and amending its goals and working out the "kinks" that any new organization faces. It encouraged its members to explore other religions and provided a means to do so, thus shedding stereotypical views of particular religions and gaining new knowledge about them from first-hand experience. Each member has been a prayer partner for Christians around the world who are persecuted for their faith. This year they were paired up with Christians in China. It has supported charities through financial donations as well as providing necessity items; it also hosted colloquiums and invited its members to religious seminars. It also helped fund students who wished to become members of the Wesleyan Theological Society in order to participate in its conferences. With the first year under its belt, it hopes to start off at full speed next year. Look for us!

The Eastern Nazarene College chapter of Psi Chi is dedicated to the enrichment of its members and students lives through encouraging, stimulating and maintaining excellence in academics and advancing the science of psychology.

SASW (Student Association of Social Workers): President: Martha Jackson, Vice President: Ryan Ardrey, Secretary: Lauren Boyd, Chaplain: David Boucher, Treasurer: Janet Fairchild

The Student Association of Social Workers is a group of nominated officers who come together twice a month to brainstorm volunteer opportunities within the Quincy community. This year we helped out with the Snugg Harbor School's Halloween Haunted House and present a donation. The student body was able to help 300 families have an enjoyable Christmas. We also gave 6 people a Thanksgiving dinner through the Boston Rescue Mission. Our mission is to reach out into the community and help those the best way we can.

THE SCIENCE CLUBS

Biology Club: President: Andrew Rankin, Vice President: Chris Greco, Treasurer: John Frazier, Secretary: Jennifer Copeland, Social Life Chairperson: Amy Lemieux, Chaplin: Devon Cnossen

The Beta Phi Mu Biology Club has had several events since the beginning of the year including Mario Kart Competitions, holiday parties, plant sales, and the famous Annual Senior Biology Banquet. This year, the Biology Club doubled its efforts to help promote a sense of community amongst the students and faculty here at ENC as well as helping to spread awareness of the inner workings of Shrader and the hard work put forth by science students.

Physics and Engineering Club:

The Physics and Engineering Club was created by ople, wanting to participate in research and engineer- ig projects, but lacked the resources and support. With ur brothers and sisters in the mathematics computer sences, we funded research in hydrogen fuel cells and te construction of a fire-fighting robot. Also, we have fered activities such as movie nights, games, lectures and ational Engineering week. "Geeks of the world unite!"

CAMPUS MINISTRY ORGANIZATIONS

OASIS: Gerson Semedo: Student Ministries Director, Peaches Wilson: Best Buddies, Shavonne Brumfield and Christie Everett: Open hand, open heart, Melissa Helms: Barnabas, Colin Chapman: STAND, Joe Donahue: JUMP, Nancy Fontaine: Prayer Warriors, Ana Pimentel and Emily Van Hine: Kid's Club, Krista Spotts: Verse of the Week, Peaches Wilson: Gospel Choir, Susie Simpson: Dance Ministry, Emily Hollywood and John Peck: Causeway

Causeway: Co leaders: Emily Hollywood and John Peck; Members: Dave Oliver, Genevieve Rivera, Sarah Hohman, Melody Santor, Jennie Warren

Causeway is a ministry that is focused on outreach. We take to heart the Great Commission with the goal of going into the world to make disciples. We strive to equip the students and to provide opportunities to reach the campus, Quincy, and the city of Boston with the good news.

Verse of the Week is an on campus ministry that reaches out to our community of believers through a different verse each week. Although we are not big in size we are big in dedication to what the Lord has in store for us. We provide encouragement through God's word to those all around us and for each individual to see. Each time we meet we are faced with the new challenge of choosing a verse that will reach each individual who reads it. We always leave feeling satisfied about the work we are doing for the Lord and hope that the verses have served as encouragement to each reader.

Verse of the Week: Leader: Krista Spotts; Members: Melissa Dilworth, Jackie Enos, Andrea Steigleder, Ha-Seog Shin

Barnabas has been a blessing to those involved this year and hopefully to those on campus. The creativity that was used in the notes was sometimes sweet, sometimes serious, mostly hilarious, and best of all – encouraging! Thank you for the good times! May God bless you this summer and beyond.

ACTS: Leader: Joe Donahue; Members: Ashley Lawson, Scott Small, Ryan Magnuson, Tim White, Amara Music, Emily VanHine, D.J. Glisson, Sarah Hohman, Julie Manley, Maria Bardales, Pablo Galvez

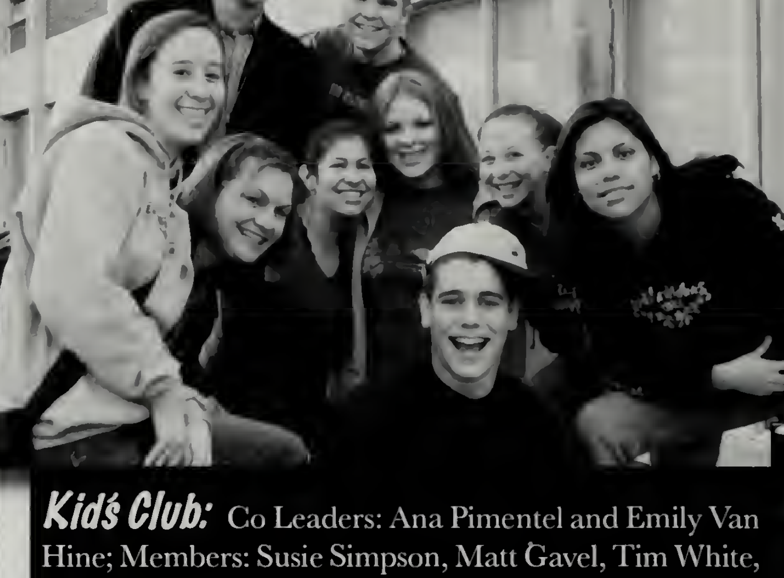
JUMP Drama Ministries, which coordinates and regulates the ACTS and SALT teams, has had an incredible year. We started traveling as early as we could this year, with one team going to Maine for a weekend and the other going to Falmouth, MA at the end of first semester. Second semester ACTS traveled out to Syracuse, NY for a weekend, as well as Melrose and Bennington, VT for Sunday morning services. SALT stayed close to home and performed for the youth group at Bethel and for the upcoming Summer Ministry participants.

SALT: Leader: Joe Donahue; Members: Tab Forrest, Jess Hilton, Neesha Oaks, Danie Stodden, Tim Troxler, Nate Martsolf, Bec Kulat, John Youngman, Kate Hulien, Li Orteaga, Erin LaFex, Wayne McClosk

Open Hand-Open Heart is the homeless ministry of ENC. We venture into Boston every Saturday with food and clothing to distribute. We meet and share with our brothers and sisters in the city that society so often forgets, and do our best to show them God's love and grace in our lives.

Open Hand-Open Heart: Shavonne Brumfield, Christie Everett, Tim Troxler, Colin Chapman, Wes Rankin, Sarah Hohman, Jennie Pietra, Mike Hammer

Eastern Nazarene College



Kid's Club: Co Leaders: Ana Pimentel and Emily Van Hine; Members: Susie Simpson, Matt Gavel, Tim White, Mike England, Joanna Miller, Becky Hurey, Kristen Jones, Megan Parks, Ana Pimentel and Emily Van Hine

Kid's Club is a student led ministry ministering to the children of Hull. It focuses on bringing children from broken homes into a loving, caring environment centered around Christ.

Prayer Warriors meets Thursday evenings at 6:00 pm in Angell Chapel. We pray for the requests and praises that students write on weekly chapel cards. We also share devotions and encourage each other when we gather. God has worked in us and through us as we have lifted up ENC in our prayers. Praise the Lord!

Prayer Warriors: Leader: Nancy Fontaine; Members: Addison Cooper, Noel Cooper, Julie White, Isaac Woodward, Meghan Murray, Elizabeth Garvin, Jonathan Youngman, Becky Kulat, Danielle Nicholson

Best Buddies: College Buddy Director: Peaches Wilson; Members: Amy Borden, Ashley Copeland, Liz Garvin, Rachel Scholl

Best Buddies ENC was re-established this year as a ministry under SGA. Our goal was to befriend individuals with intellectual disabilities and provide social friendships for them. Best Buddies is an international non-profit organization, which provides one-to-one friendships and employment. We are a chapter of this organization. Each college buddy showed love and respect to each individual.

CAMPUS MINISTRY ORGANIZATION HIGHLIGHT: STAND

STAND: Leader: Colin M. Chapman, Members: Jen Mitchell, Julie Erb, Anne Marie Sousa, Liz Kemmerer, Martha Jackson, Matt Van Hoff.

STAND is still a young ministry, only just completing its second full year. It is amazing to watch the growth that God has blessed it with; with the members who willfully give of their time to every event held. We were able to raise over $500 dollars to go towards Blood: Water Mission, as well as other charities with events held throughout the year.

As Christian's, we are called to help the poor, the sick, and the needy. The more I learn about the HIV/AIDS pandemic raging across the globe, the clearer it is to me that to help with the crisis is to help all three of the above. When one hears every day in Africa, 6,500 people die and another 9,500 contract the HIV virus, it makes our misson to love one another even stronger.

We know of the Black Plague, but do we know what the Christians were doing at the time? This is our own Black Plague. Let us write the history books. When people look back at the start of the 21st century let it be impossible for them to read about HIV/AIDS without seeing how much Christians helped to snuff out the disease. We believe in a God that's bigger than HIV/AIDS. Through him, with prayer and service, we can show the world the true love of Christ, and the power that comes through it.

CAMPUS MINSITRY ORGANIZATION HIGHLIGHT: 150

Excitement broke out on campus as students learned that there would be a dance club at ENC. Michelle Letter organized the meetings and was an intrical part in 150's beginning. She is still involved with the group and is a co-advisor with Don Eastonbrooks. 150 gets its name from Psalms 150 that reads "Praise the Lord. Praise God in his sanctuary; praise him in his mighty heaves. Praise him for his acts of power; praise him for his surpassing greatness. Praise him with the sounding of the trumpet, praise him with the harp and lyre, praise him with tambourine and dancing, praise him with the strings and flute, praise him with the clash of cymbals, praise him with resounding cymbals. Let everything that has breath praise the Lord." There are three different branches of 150: Lyrical, Hip-Hop and Step. The groups are all student lead with choreographers, a secretary, treasurer, co-leaders and co-chaplains. The group ministered at various churches throughout the school year. They also took part in the schools first Eye and Eye Concert and participated in an off-the-hook concert with the Gospel Choir. It is 150's hope to reach people who would not normally hear the gospel as well as to minister to those already saved. 150's main purpose though, is to glorify God through the gift of dance.

ENC SOCIAL LIFE COMMITTEE

Socail Life Committee: Leader: Keri Miller; Members: Katelynn Shaw, Jocelyn Ferland, Rachel Galbraith, Mike Hammer, Russ Milburn, Kylie Streams, Amber DuMond, Jeff Hamilton

The Social Life Committee has a crucial role on campus; we try to find new and exciting ways to entertain the student body. This year we added some new things: more concerts, game shows like Who Knows You Better, and movie nights. Thanks so much for coming out to events. I praise God for the people that I have worked with and for the awesome opportunities He has given us to serve you. Rock on ENC, rock on!

The Individual Expression

SOCIAL LIFE

College life allows for a plethora of personalities to display their own talents and behaviors. The individual expression that the student body encompasses is one that reaches a diverse range. Whether it is through style, behavior, culture, faith, or friendships, this community is able to express themselves in many distinctive ways. This year the student life events catered to a wide range of individuals who expressed themselves in a variety of ways. The game shows were a hit among those who wanted to embarrass themselves for an amusing prize while the intramural sports were a lot of fun among those who wanted to show off their athletic abilities. The concerts and open mic nights were a place for students or guests of ENC to express themselves through their musical abilities. If there were people who were not involved in these activities they were seen in the audience or the crowd cheering on their friends and classmates. The individual expression describes what each and every student carries with them that impacts the ENC community.

Eastern Nazarene Colle

Welcome Week was a huge success this year, drawing a large and diverse crowd at each of the events. There were some new events and a few classic traditions that combined for a busy, but fun week. Justin McRoberts kicked off the week with a concert, his second at ENC in 2003. Over 80 students gathered on the lawn for a giant night game of Capture the Flag. Injuries were inevitable, but the camouflage clad group pressed on and battled for two hours. Open Mic Night showcased the incredible talents of both returning students and some entertaining new freshmen. As promised, the Midnight Harbor Cruise had an incredible view, food, and karaoke (a special shout out to the pop duo Mike Alvaro and Brandon Frost for their unforgettable rendition of the Bangles' "Walk Like an Egyptian"). It was a great week of bonding and good times before the homework and tests began.

Old Person BINGO

The senior class brought back Old People Bingo to ENC November 18, and around thirty people got dressed up and headed to the cafeteria, old people style. Though bingo was the original purpose for the gathering, it seemed that many of the participants had the most fun picking out their outfits, sending students out to the Quincy Goodwill.

As the Bingo games started, shouts of, "Slow down, I'm old!" and, "What? What was that number?" started coming from all over the aging audience. One "old man" in particular was convinced that he had heard G29 called several times, wearing on the judges' patience.

After a number of wins there was a best dressed contest held to liven things up a bit. It seemed as though it was going to be a pretty tough decision, with several guys dressed in old women's clothes, and some old ladies with bags full of prescription pills and crumpled up tissues hanging out of their sleeves. In the end freshman Wanda Jacobs, with her respirator, won for the girls, and sophomore Ryan Magnuson won for the boys. Magnuson came in a wheelchair pushed by his "grandson," half bald with old man glasses that covered half his face and an afghan to cover his legs. (I was told he was still in his outfit the next morning--afghan and all.)

The prizes were also a lot of fun, and quite senior-appropriate for the most part. They had everything from hemorrhoid cream, to men's Depends, extra large prunes, and a box of bran, as well as a number of random children's toys (for the grandkids?).

-Julie Erb

1: Ryan Magnuson ages almost beyond recognition for old people Bingo. 2: Tiny spins for Bingo while Russ Milburn looks on to ensure there is no cheating. 3: Mike England goes country as he ages, while Dutch van Hoff ventures to a Scottish style. 4: Brian Bergeron looks slightly embarrassed as he receives his prize. 5: Julie Erb looks "darling" as an old woman. 6: The Elderly focus intensely on their game of bingo.

It started with Let's Make a Deal hosted by Adrian Mills and Andrew Porter and the unforgettably gross image of chocolate melting away on Keri Miller's tongue. That alone will make the audience hope they are never approached to join a show. But that was nothing. When it came time for Battle of the Sexes a whole new level of gross was accomplished. The most amazing test that evening was when our female and male contestants were handed a bottle of maple syrup, now just from the looks the girls where cringing worried about the seemingly obvious loss we were about to face. But Joanna Miller chugged Mike England right under the table, proving that you can never underestimate a woman. The next show took the audience from rooting for their perspective sexes to hoping that the matches in Singled Out would be at least somewhat compatible. The show kept us involved. From the second Chad Restrick spoke, we all worried that the females would be able to guess who the dream date was. I do not think you can attend one of the shows without feeling some how involved whether cringing, laughing, or hoping that show will make it through in one piece. If you ever attend a game show, you can be sure that you'll be amused.

1: Diva Keri Miller holds chocolate on her tongue in an endurance race, let's hope she won that deal. 2: Aaron McCabe in Knee-Highs, need we say more. 3: Ryan Ardrey stands perfectly still after licking 8 lifesavers and sticking them on his face, in Let's Make a Deal. 4: Lori downs hotdogs in a race against the men, in Battle of the Sexes. 5: Corrie McLaughlin cringes as she is shown her test in Let's Make a Deal. 6: Joanna Miller downs a bottle of Maple Syrup in record time, for the girl's team in Battle of Sexes. 7: Mike England tries his best to chug down the syrup but his pause cost him the win to the girl's team.

When Eunice Ferreira announced that the fall musical for 2003 was going to be the Tony Award winning show Guys and Dolls, there were a few raised eyebrows. The prevailing wisdom held that ENC did not have a full enough stable of male actors to fill the cast. Never doubt Ferreira's capacity for recruitment. Far from being stretched thin, Guys and Dolls was chock full of talented first-timers such as Nathan Martsolf and Joe Helm who fit perfectly as the comical bungling sidekicks Benny Southstreet and Nicely-Nicely Johnson. Or Chris Young and Phil Ramos, whose dancing and arobatics lit up the stage during "The Crapshooters' Dance" number.

The play was anchored by old pros, however. The main couple of Sky Masterson and Sgt. Sarah Brown were played by Nat McIntyre (a professional actor and ENC theater veteran) and senior Susan Sodergren. Their acting prowess was matched by their counterpart couple of Nathan Detroit and Miss Adelaide, played by juniors Patrick Pasik and Jillian Ellwood, neither of whom are strangers to the stage. Guys and Dolls was staged on the third and fourth weekends of October and gleaned enthusiastic audience reactions.

The 2003 Battle of the Bands not only presented a wide array of musical styles—including alternative, rap, and country—but was also a showcase of talented musicians whose investments of time and effort were displayed through their outstanding performances.

Coming in third place in the end of the competition was the band Cash, which was a tribute to the late Johnny Cash. Its members Patrick Pasik, Josh Knowlton, James Coleman, Kyle Alspach, and Chris Alspach, performed two Johnny Cash songs, "Ring of Fire" and "Hurt" which was previously recorded by Nine Inch Nails. Taking second place was Jerry the 3rd Jr, consisting of John Mayer, Colin Chapman, and Pete Clouser. Mayer performed two remarkable mallet solos while Chapman played the bass in the background and danced, desiring to imitate the style of Dave Matthews. Finally, the first place group called themselves 'The Band' and performed several Christian rap songs, stressing to the audience that, "This ain't regular rap music. We're doing this for Jesus Christ." The Band's music brought the audience to its feet as lead vocalist Jackson Francois stepped down from the stage and rapped a message of salvation.

There were three other groups that performed as well. Zero 47 consisted of Jonathan Patterson and Andrew Donohue who performed two familiar songs, "Time of Your Life" by Green Day and the theme song from Titanic, also re-recorded by New Found Glory, "My Heart Will Go On." Mike Alvaro's band, The Alvaro Experiment, included his little sister Ashley on guitar and Mike Magrans playing the bongos. Alvaro wrote all the songs they performed and, during his last number, he used an electric drum machine, turntable, and mixer to create complicated rhythms. John MacLeod and Lucas McGary joined to perform two songs off MacLeod's album—"Soon Enough" and "Transparent" -both of which he wrote.

Overall, the 2003 Battle of the Bands was a vehicle for the exhibition of some of the greatest talent ENC has to offer.

Flag Football 2003, ten teams began the quest for the coveted T-shirts in early October. There was Team Skinny, led by their star cornerback Adam Stewart, who finished the season tied for second in INTS with seven. Then there was team Car Ramrod, affectionately known as the freshman team. There is a lot of talent on this team, watch out for them in the future. Team White came out of each game with a ton of heart and played each game to the very end, led by their emotional QB Dave Thomas. We also had the team from the West Coast, Team California, led by an emotional core of receivers; they were very fast and always ready for a battle on the field. The Pug Uglies led by our very own Rec. Life Director Chris Kauffman, finished 5th and had one of the most exciting games of the year. An overtime loss against another great team, Boston Tea Party. As for the Tea Party they were led by a physical defense and gun slinging QB Brian Bergeron. That brings us to Big and Scary, a team led by Ken Driscoll/Grill Master Ken, who made the most spectacular play of the year, when he completely laid out to grab a flag and stop Matt Watson running down the sideline. Next is Some Kind of Juggernaut, led by their captain Mike England, who played each play as if it was his last, while the best flag puller in the league was Chris Lee. That brings us to the two teams that battled for Super Bowl Glory and the coveted T-shirts the Dirtbags and CMMO. The league MVP Jon Showe led the Dirtbags and the league's best Wide Receiver was Graham Crain. They had a powerful offense to go with a suffocating defense. They finished the regular season 8-1, their only loss to the team they would play for the shirts. CMMO, a team with no real superstars, but tons of experience, led by QB John Cogan, who had the league's best offensive lineman, Jon Lanham, and a mixture of speed and size at receiver. They, like the Dirtbags, had a suffocating defense, led by safety Matt Holt and defensive lineman Brian Wakulinski. The Super Bowl was a great game, CMMO jumped to an early lead, but The Dirtbags never gave up and battled back. In the end it was a 4th down conversion pass from Cogan to Jay McPherson that led CMMO to finishing a perfect season 11-0. It was great season for all teams.

1: A force to be reckoned with. Sam Durant starts out with solid form. 2: Jacob MacInnis really gets into the game. 3: Kevin Simonson looks calm as he dodges the defense. 4: Chad Restrick catches the long pass, unfortunately on the ground. 5: Kevin Simonson's eyes are on the ball, while Justin Coffey sets a firm jaw.

3-on-3 Basketball

Twenty-seven students on nine teams played in front of almost 100 fans as they battled their way through the double elimination 3-on-3 intramural basketball tournament. Each team consisted of two males and one female. After a couple hours of hard fought games, only Dan Zimmerman's team and John Cogan's team made their way into the championship. After two hard fought games, John Cogan, Phil Harris, and Rebecca Welch prevailed as the tournament champions. Participation was at a recent high, and a good time was had by all who were involved.

-Chris Kauffman

Powderpuff is always an excuse for we girls to get together and have fun. We don't have very large agendas, winning would be nice, but fun definitely is the goal. This is not meant to somehow belittle the athleticism involved, but the competition is not really the point. We get excited with each catch, whether it involves our own team, or the one we are playing against. A touchdown by the opposing team doesn't necessarily invoke feelings of happiness and pride on our behalf, but it surely doesn't set off intense anger or tears. Instead, a loss is taken in stride and a win brings a smile to the face of all your team members. This makes the game worth it.

This year was rewarding. The idea of pitting senior upon freshman may conjure up images of hazing, which, by the way, is very illegal at ENC. Instead there is a camaraderie established somewhere between the coin toss and the final toss. Though challenging each other at a point between the first down and the winding down a mutual respect is forged.

ENC Travels The Globe: Switzerland

J-Term Trip New Zealand

In January, twenty students and two professors left cold, snowy New England behind and took off for Hawaii and New Zealand on the three-week voyage for J-term. The group experienced and weathered many difficulties along the way from 11 hour plane rides to 8 hour van rides. The first plane voyage landed us in the sunny, warm Hawaii where we explored the Dole Pineapple Plantation, visited the Arizona Memorial at Pearl Harbor, and on our return trip hiked through Volcano National Park. We left Hawaii and headed for New Zealand. Once there, we visited geothermal hot springs and experienced life in a Mauri village. We hiked through glacier valleys and were able to see the peak of the usually clouded Mt. Cook.

Before we knew it our three week travel adventure ended, and we headed back to cold, snowy New England, but with stories to tell, memories to share, and new friends to cherish.

Le MERIDIEN

A Spring Break in Switzerland was so unexplainable. Our group consisted of 17 very different personalities, which blended amazingly well during our stay, as well as Rick Stephens, his son Billy and Doc. We experienced the culture and cities of Switzerland; saw amazing mountain views, when the clouds decided to lift, and some of the traditional food. Those who skied found the Alps to be a little different than they expected, the deep powder was a given, but skiing over holes, across streets, and through small towns made amusing stories over dinner. Especially the fact that those skiing ended up hiking uphill a lot, hmmm. Everyone did a least a little bit of traveling, visiting Geneva, Luzerne, Bern and a few of us went to Italy for lunch or shopping. In addition we met a lot of people just at our hostel Balmer's, which provided us with great service and shelving, and foam for beds. The trip proved to be very enjoyable until the patience-testing trip back, in which by the final plans brought the group back in five different directions and flights. If this trip didn't end up being the dream summer break it did provide for a plethora of stories and some buddies that will last forever.

1: Jocie Ferland, Shayna Harper, Martha Haynes, Nicole Wilson, Chrissa Vallese and Jamei King take a photo while waiting for a train to Italy for the day. 2: The 4 star Le Merdien Hotel was a well deserved gift from the airlines after sending the group through every line in every airport in Europe, or so it seemed. 3: The Dean treats the group to a Swiss meal of cheese fondue at Balmers. 4: Aaron McCabe, Luke MacInnis, Dan Zimmerman, Jake MacInnis and Kevin Hartley take a break while spending the day in the Alps. 5: Matthew Holt, Chrissa Vallese, Jamei King and Martha Haynes take in the phenomenal view of the entire Alps at the top of Europe, the Schilthorn Piz Gloria.

1: Melody Page, Jess Weatherbee, Cara Nichols, Meghan Thayer, and Joy Barrett straddle one of New Zealand's many fault lines. 2: Rachel Galbraith is taught by a native how to dance. 3: Kiwi Campus gathers at beautiful Pearl Harbor. 4: Doc. McLaren teaches just a bit outside the campus of ENC. 5: The group is lead over a suspension bridge.

CAUSE 2004: Mexico

This year's College And University Students Enabling (C.A.U.S.E). team served once again in Chiapas, Mexico. However, this year we served in a different town called Alvaro Obregon. Our ministry there involved a lot of community outreach. Our site for the week was a town park located at the center of the city. Each day we were met by so many of the local people, children who were ready to play, teens who asked for help with their English homework, and adults eager to get to know us. This trip was not only a great break away from the winter weather of New England, but it was also a chance for us to give up our time and serve God. Each of us were blessed by the conversations we had, the incredible love we were shown, and the time spent with the people.

This C.A.U.S.E. trip changed my life. And I know that I will never be the same. I encourage you to get involved in this program and allow God to stretch you in ways you never thought possible.

This year's Miss Munro took on the theme of Disney Princesses, and other female characters of the sort. The girls competed in the categories of talent, costumes, and a question and answer session. The Disney girls showed off their magic by having an APPROVED dance off. All the girls did well, but Chrissa "Ariel: The Little Mermaid" Vallese came out on top.

Miss Munro Pageant 2004

The most meaningful experience while in college was the opportunity to direct a main stage production in ENC's Cove Auditorium for my senior project. I set this goal for myself freshman year, and now, as a senior I saw that goal realized. Working under faculty advisor, Eunice Ferreira, I directed The Diary of Anne Frank.

This production, based on the actual diary of Anne Frank, offered a message of hope as each character struggled to survive in the midst of despair. Anne's diary, published in over 55 languages, continues to resonate with people today. The opportunity to direct such an inspiring play has been invaluable to my training.

The cast of ten actors and I had only four weeks of rehearsal time to honestly portray these real-life characters. After each of the four sold-out productions we had a talkback with the audience. The cast and I were greeted with a warm audience who shared with us both insightful questions and comments on how they were so touched by this production.

The Senior Class event "ENC Squares," was the apex of days and days of hard work, planning, and watching countless hours of re-runs of Hollywood Squares. Or maybe it wasn't. Dr. McClung replaced Whoopi Goldberg as the coveted "Center Square" and was the highlight of the night. Some of the questions asked: If a walrus eats enough food, what can it do? It will grow wider than its own length. The average American will eat how many pigs in their lifetime? They will eat a total of 28. What is the name of the house band that sang the theme song for the popular 90's show "Where in the World is Carmen San Diego?" The band was ROCKAPELLA! On a whole, ENC Squares was a really great event to do and a lot of fun. If you didn't go you missed out. X gets the square.

God set aside this weekend to remind us that we are on a spiritual journey or quest. This spiritual pilgrimage is different for each individual, but the steps are usually the same. Throughout the weekend, we explored two facets of the spiritual quest: awakening and purgation. We did this through songs of worship, the spoken word, and small groups. From the moment we arrived at Camp Taconic we could sense the presence of God. As the weekend progresses, many were able to give witness to this reality as we heard powerful testimonies of how God was manifesting His presence through renewal of grace, healing, and purgation. One of the most powerful things about the weekend was the "spirit" of confirmation. That is, everyone seemed to be in the same wavelength as far as what God was seeking to reveal to us.

As the weekend came to an end, we felt that we were a family. The weekend produced new friendships and deeper other existing relationships. The spiritual journey is now to be continued as we get back to the "valley" of life. We were challenged to be the kind of people that will make a difference in our own "world." Our world is composed of our parameter of influence, that is, the circle of our family, friends, workplace, dormitory and "hanging" out spots. The spiritual quest is not over until we reach our heavenly home. Praise God for pouring out His grace over us during the Spiritual Life Retreat of 2004.

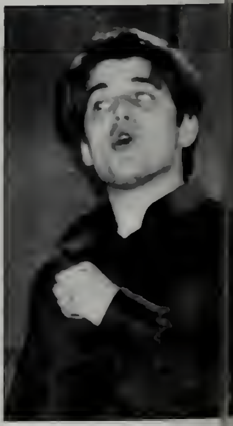
7: EJ Lewis holds onto Jon Kim with all his might. 8: Matt Reed and Chris Kauffman share the giant bowl of popcorn. 9: The speaker for the weekend Marco DeBarros gets pumped up with a little music. 10: Pablo Galvez, Maria Bardales, Rosilene Ribeiro and Jonathan Walker enjoy some time to build stronger friendships.

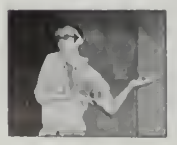
Spring Fever '04: Lip Sync

The Lip Sync 2004 was most definitely a night full of great, cheesy fun. Not only were the acts hilarious to watch, but the crowd was totally responsive. I had never been to a "Lip Sync" or ever done any type of improv with Patrick. However, with his chill personality and my brightly colored wigs, we proved to be quite an interesting pair.

There was such a variety of award deserving acts, but only three were able to take away prizes. Winning the award for best all around was Wishin' and Hopin' from "My Best Friends Wedding," preformed by the RD and RA's of Spange and Willy. Receiving the award for best choreography was Maria Bardales and her company with their comical rendition of William Hung's "She Bangs". Finally, the crazy antics of Mike Alvaro and Ryan Ardrey, Tar Tar and Rar Rar Moskewitz, earned them the award for the funniest act, which most would agree not only made them laugh, but slightly shudder. Overall, everyone did an excellent job, and since Patrick and I were so well received, we may MC again next year. So until then, we'll see you at Lip Sync 2005!

-Marvelyn McFarlane





1: Amanda Marble tells her bridesmaids how to get their man. 2: Marvelyn McFarlane and Patrick Pasik hosted the show with humor and professionalism. 3: Maria Bardales did a perfect impression of William Hung and She Bangs. 4: Professor Marylou Shea shares her most embarrassing moment with us…right then! 5: Mike Alvero, and Ryan Ardrey show a little more leg meat than should ever be seen, and are joined by the cowbell playing Mike Magrans. 6: Dan Messier starts out the night with an amazing presentation of an A Cappella song.

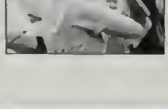
Spring Fever '04: Sumo Time

Students from all over the campus come together to take part in the ultimate test of strength: SUMO

1: Laura Smith takes out
Jester. 2: Susie Simpson wave
fans. 3 & 4: More SUMO



1: Ashlee Ghilardi takes a solo for the much loved eMRY's. 2: Tim Arsenault pretends to be Ahhrrrrrnold. 3: Erica Silva and Jillian Ellwood relax in the sun while enjoying fried Oreos and Funnel Cake. 4: Dana Huan crawls across the inflatable obstacle course.

This year the 2004 Spring Fever Weekend was like none other before. The baseball field was filled with ENCer's who were listening to the eMRY's, sumo wrestling, being dunked in the water tank, jumping through the inflatable obstacle course, playing frisbee or rugby, and eating fried twinkies. The day turned out to be a success among all who enjoyed it. This weekend helped the students relax before the last crushing weeks of classes and finals. There were watergun fights and volleyball games that added to the events of the afternoon. This year's spring fever was one to remember because the weather added a great atmosphere to the day. What many were looking forward to became a memorable end to a long cold semester.

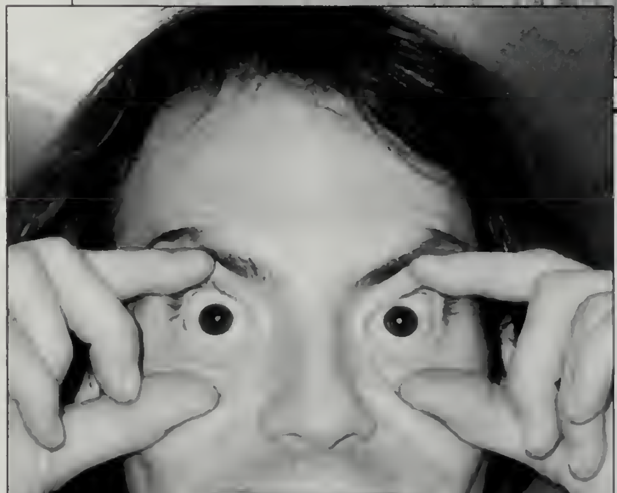
Advertisements

Nautilus 2004



This section of the yearbook could not have been completed without the dedication and talent of Erica Silva, Business Manager and Advertising Consultant, and DJ Glisson, advertisement designer. Erica worked for months sending out contracts to hundreds of parents, churches, districts, and departments. She fulfilled the purposed advertisement goal which kept us on track, as best as possible, with our budget. DJ compiled all the advertisements that were requested to be designed and laid them out splendidly. He gave the senior ads a new touch which gives the overall advertisement section a much more interesting look. Thanks to Erica and DJ, the Nautilus has a great new look for it's advertisement section.

Allen Hamlin

We would like to give a special recognition to Allen Hamlin who served as the Religion Club Administrative Assistant until deployment. Allen assisted in the initiation of the club and followed through with his and our vision of it. Allen is an extremely dedicated individual - to the club, to his country, and to God. Please continue to pray for him while he is overseas.

Congratulations to the Business Majors!

As we both seek to follow God in our new adventures, I pray that you will keep Him close to your heart, listen to His voice, and stay close to the Word. We both have experienced highs and lows here during our time at ENC, but one thing that is for certain, is the presence of the Lord in this place.

I wish you all great success, not simply in terms of worldly accomplishments, but those that will create a lasting impression and count for eternity.

God Bless,
Prof Al Socci

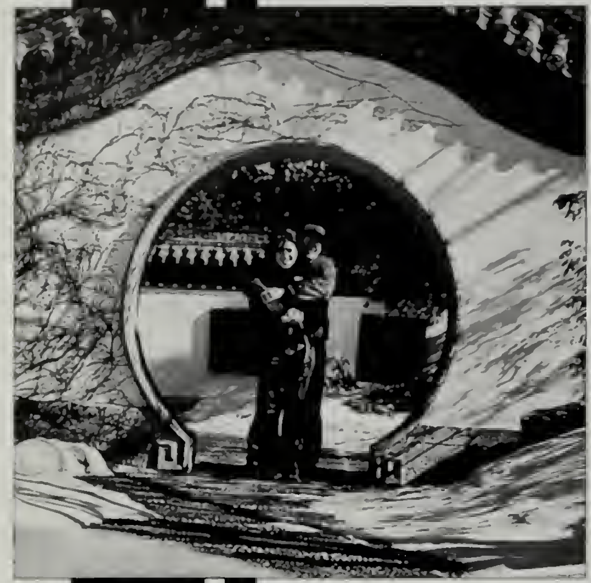
Editor's Page

Martha Jackson



This yearbook involves so much more than people may see at first hand glance. The Renaissance is filled with new beginnings and new experiences. Therefore, in this yearbook, we focused a great deal on new professors, new students, new athletes, new clubs, new student life events, and an overall new layout. This will be the first of several new and enticing yearbooks for ENC students in the years to come. I do, however, have to give full credit for this idea to Colin M. Chapman. He was the manpower behind this genius theme for the Nautilus and has personally handcrafted each one of these pages. This yearbook hopes to give the students a better memory of their years shared at ENC. It has captured defeats, friendships, joyous moments, and most of all a better idea of what campus life was like.

On a more personal level, this year has been such an incredible learning experience for me. I have never felt so stressed out in my life. The surprising thing, though, was that the yearbook was my one thing to do to forget all that. I had such a reliable and diligent staff who, by doing their job effectively, made my life easier. Putting together a yearbook is such a difficult task, as Colin and I learned last year, that adding it onto my regular schedule was sought to be impossible. It was, however, a place for me to feel confident about what I was doing and assured that my staff would follow through with all that was required of them. They did this and I am so grateful to them.

It would also be important for me to thank those outside of yearbook who supported me all the way through. First I want to thank my best friend, Julie Erb. We have been friends and roommates for three years and she has always encouraged me and supported me. This year she was editor of the Campus Camera, which gave us the opportunity to understand what the other was going through when putting out deadlines, dealing with staff, or just venting. She was the one person who was there for me at any time of the day or night. Second, I want to thank my roommates, Carrie Murphy and Jaime Govoni, for having to put up with me. This year would not have been the same without them. Third, I want to thank Brian Bergeron for supporting me through this difficult year. He has been such an incredible blessing in life. With each of these people, as well as my friends, family, professors, and staff, I could not have gotten through this year. Thank You.

Martha Patience Jackson,
Editor in Chief

All Things Considered

Beginning with the 2004 book, the Nautilus Staff started a three-year chronicle of Eastern Nazarene College. The All Things Considered Trilogy would give a vast and wide documentation of the school, while each separate book focuses on a different part of life on campus.

The first book, The Renaissance, will discuss the new and changing areas of the school: incoming students and teachers as well as new clubs and activities. The second book, The Preservation, will turn the attention toward the aspects of the school that have lasted the test of time: veteran teachers, school landmarks, and age old traditions. Finally, the series concludes in The Culmination; in which things that come to an end will be highlighted.

Each volume will work separately as a yearbook, but together will give a first hand historical source for years to come. This will provide a deeper understanding to what life was like at Eastern Nazarene College during the early years of the 21st century.
